

Quick okay given to energy bill

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's program for handling Wisconsin's fuel needs during a petroleum shortage was approved 72-22 Tuesday by the Assembly.

The Democratic-controlled Assembly forwarded the measure to the Republican-ruled Senate, whose leaders said it would be on today's agenda.

The energy crisis and a dispute over distribution of state shared-tax revenue were the key reasons for Lucey's having called legislators into special session this week.

Stanley York, whom Lucey appointed as temporary energy commissioner pending legislative action, said the Assembly bill could provide his office with muscle to safeguard the state's energy needs.

The bill would give York's office the authority to demand confidential reports from oil corporations concerning fuel sales and supplies.

The bill would clear the way for a gasoline-saving speed limit of 55 miles per hour, applied uniformly to cars, trucks, buses and other vehicles as a traffic safety precaution.

It would authorize the State Highway Commission to allow trucks to exceed weight limits if the step were necessary to conserve fuel.

The proposal would take effect as soon as signed into law, and would remain in effect until July 1, 1975, unless the governor decided sooner to cancel it.

The governor had not specified how much money should be available for York's office, and the Assembly recommended $200,000 for the 1973-75 biennium.

It also set aside $50,000 more which York could request from the Board on Government Operations.

The Assembly dealt with 55 amendments, adopting several of them.

It decided to deny the energy commissioner any authority to regulate industrial hours of operation. Businessmen had complained about York's suggestion that factories consider an energy-conserving four-day work week.

The Assembly bill would assure public schools they would not have to sacrifice state financial aid were they forced to close down because of a dearth of heating fuel.

York said the bill's provision for letting his office obtain data from petroleum suppliers, even going to court if necessary, would help clear up many questions about the amount of fuel available to Wisconsin.

"Information is what I need," the former Republican party executive said. The bill called for fines of up to $1,000

The head Santa

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Dowie's Santa Claus School concentrates on turning out believable, authentic-looking, jolly old St. Nicks without that "Ho, Ho, Ho" jive.

"We never tell our Santas to say 'Ho, Ho, Ho,'" said Fran Dowie. "No one really goes around saying 'Ho, Ho, Ho.' You just have to keep your personality bubbling. It's not what you say. It's what you feel."

Dowie's school, part of the British Columbia School of Performing Arts and Crafts, offers a 10-week course — four hours of instruction a day — for $50 per student. However, Dowie admits a person with an outgoing personality can learn the role in about six hours.

But $50 really is a bargain he says. Gradyates from his school can get $25 an hour from Santa-users who want a top-of-the-line product.

Forty students graduated from this year's course, Dowie said. About 120 people applied, but most were turned down as unqualified.

Qualifications include a lot of years. Dowie says older persons with white eyebrows and mature face and tone of voice make the best Santas.

"It really drives me up a wall when I see 18-year-olds taking a Santa job when there are senior citizens who could do it," Dowie said. "It's not hard work. You sit down and do the thing old folks like doing most of all: talking to children."

Clothes are critically important, Dowie says. The best beards are made of yak hair, but are all but impossible to get now, he says.

Dowie favors combed-up eyebrows, a feather pillow belly, a coat of red velvet, a sprig of holly on the cap and white gloves.

White gloves are very important. Who can trust a Santa Claus with dirty fingernails, he asks.

Watergate tape played at party

BY EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lawyer for the Ralph Nader organization has apologized for playing a subpoenaed White House tape for a group of friends.

"I've made a terrible mistake. I never should have done it. I'm extremely sorry. I regret it," attorney William Dobrovir said Tuesday night after news of the private session broke.

The White House said his action sounded unethical or illegal. A spokesman for special prosecutor Leon Jaworski expressed concern over White House reaction.

"That's just what we were worried about. Watch what the White House does with this now," the spokesman said.

The tape at issue was one that had been subpoenaed by the Nader organization in its suit against the administration charging that the dairy industry received beneficial policy decisions in exchange for a large contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign.

For months the White House had rebuffed the organization's efforts to obtain the tapes, then last week turned one over to Dobrovir. It was this tape that he played at a pre-dinner cocktail party.

Dobrovir said the seven others at the party, including Kevin Delany, ABC News Washington bureau chief, asked him to play the tape. He said he had a copy of it with him because he was planning to listen to it at home later that night.

Dobrovir said he told the gathering the tape "is practically inaudible" but said he played about five minutes of it.

"It was very difficult to understand what Mr. Nixon was saying. Then I... put it in my pocket and we went off to dinner."

ABC reported the incident on its Tuesday night newscast.

The tape in question was one of two made March 23, 1971. It recorded a meeting between President Nixon, administration aides and dairy industry representatives, but investigators have said they believe it is not particularly valuable as evidence.

Still being sought by Dobrovir is the second tape made that day of an afternoon meeting between Nixon and then-Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin and then-Budget Director George P. Shultz. The White House has claimed executive privilege in withholding this recording.

The incident was similar to one disclosed in October when former special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox divulged to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., what the White House had considered a privileged conversation concerning an ITT antitrust case.

At that time, the White House charged that telling Kennedy of the conversation illustrated a bias Cox had against the administration in his investigation. Cox apologized for discussing the material with Kennedy.

Kuwait silent on fate of Palestinian hijackers

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait officials maintained official silence today on the fate of five Palestinian terrorists who killed 32 persons in a two-day spree at airports in Rome and Athens.

But official sources in Morocco said Kuwaiti authorities have pledged that "severe punishment" awaits the killers. Two of their victims were Moroccan ministers.

Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Taieb Benhima received assurances the five guerrillas will stand trial in Kuwait or be handed over to the Palestinian Liberation Organization for trial, the sources said.

The terrorists falsified V-for-victory signs and said they were proud of what they had done as they were taken in handcuffs Tuesday night to a military air base for questioning.

They had freed 12 hostages unharmed and then surrendered after flying to this Persian Gulf sheikdom in a hijacked West German jet. Kuwaiti officials said their surrender was unconditional but spokesmen for the West German airline Lufthansa said Kuwait had promised them safe passage to an undisclosed destination.

The German jet returned to Rome today, 49 hours after the commandos took it over following their shooting spree and firebombing of a jet Monday at Rome's airport.

The 12 hostages were aboard the jet and were greeted by a happy crowd of relatives, colleagues and authorities.

The hostages included five Italian policemen, an Ethiopian ground employee at the Rome airport, West German, French and Austrian stewardesses, and the three crewmen of the jet.

Salvatore Fortuna, one of the policemen, was welcomed home by his parents, 11 brothers, fiancé and friends, who traveled overnight from Sicily to meet him.

After the hostages were freed in Kuwait Tuesday, the German pilot of the hijacked plane went to a hotel room and told the switchboard not to put any calls through to him. The five Italian policemen who were among the hostages went to the night club at the Kuwait Hilton.

The guerrillas killed 30 persons by firebombing a Pan American jet Monday at Rome's Fiumicino airport and shot an Italian policeman to death. They killed another Italian among their hostages in Athens and threw his body out of the plane. But reports from the plane that four other hostages had been murdered were false, concocted by the guerrillas in a futile attempt to get the Greek government to release two Black September terrorists awaiting trial for murder.

At least 14 of the victims of the Rome firebombing were Americans, and a 16-year-old American girl who survived, Robbie Haggard, was in critical condition with burns over much of her body.

The guerrillas told newsmen they considered themselves guests in Kuwait and believed they would be well treated.

Laird quits as Nixon's top aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Melvin R. Laird resigned today as President Nixon's chief domestic counselor and called upon his former colleagues in the House of Representatives to vote by March 15 on an impeachment resolution.

Laird said the continuing controversy over Watergate and other issues was hurting America's foreign and domestic policies and said it is time for House members to "accept their constitutional responsibilities" and vote on whether Nixon should be impeached.

Laird predicted the impeachment resolution would fail.

Laird told a White House news briefing of his decision to leave Nixon's staff effective Feb. 1 after seven months as the President's chief domestic counselor.

"I don't have disappointments" in departing to become senior counselor for national and international affairs of the Reader's Digest Association, Laird said in rejecting reports he was unhappy because Nixon had failed to heed his political advice.

"This is the time I can make the break and I do not believe this should be interpreted in any way that I am a quitter," said Laird, who served as secretary of defense during Nixon's first term.

Laird said he had not expressed to Nixon his view that the House should set a deadline for voting on an impeachment resolution.

But Laird said the White House had made available extensive information on which the House could base its decision.

"There's no reason why they can't pass judgment in the next 60 days," he said.

The Wisconsin Republican, who served nine terms in Congress, said his estimate is that an impeachment resolution would not receive a majority vote.

Under the Constitution, impeachment proceedings must originate in the House.

The House can impeach, or bring charges, by majority vote. If the House voted for impeachment, then a trial would be held by the Senate, with a two-thirds vote necessary for conviction and removal from office.

In the news briefing and in a resignation letter dated Dec. 17, Laird said the new vice president, Gerald Ford, can take over his congressional liaison and domestic adviser duties.

In a letter of response, Nixon thanked Laird for postponing his departure for a month until Feb. 1 to help prepare the State of the Union and budget messages.

Mother, 5 children die in Orlando fire

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A mother and her five children died early today when a blaze destroyed the second floor of a wooden two-family dwelling, fire officials said.

Authorities identified the victims as Elizabeth Forest, 23, and her children — Isaac, 8; Cathy, 7; Lilile Mae, 6; Lorine, 4; and Michael, 3.

"The bodies of the six were found piled under a bed" on the second floor of the two-story building, said Richard King, spokesman for the Orange County Sheriff's office.

Officials originally reported that five children and one teenager were killed in the blaze and that the mother was identifying the bodies.

"There was a lot of confusion as to who was and who wasn't killed," King said. "At first, we thought the mother was a 16-year-old sister of the dead children."

Investigators said the fire apparently was started by a candle.

"They were using candles because the electricity was shut off Tuesday," King said. "A neighbor told us one candle was sitting on a plastic cover on the dresser."

Authorities said 14 persons were in the building when the blaze broke out but the family of Clarence Williams, living on the first floor, was able to escape without injury, authorities said.

Williams said after the fire broke out he tried to awaken the Forest family by yelling and pounding on the building but they did not respond.

"The upstairs was a ball of fire," Williams said.

Authorities said they were attempting to notify the unidentified father who lived at a different address.

Agnew asks suspension rather than disbarment

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has asked the Maryland judiciary to only suspend him from practicing law.

Agnew, who faces possible disbarment by the State of Maryland, appealed to a panel of three circuit court judges Tuesday, asking them not to agree with the request for his disbarment from the Maryland Bar Association.

He asked the judges to recommend to the state's highest court "some suitable suspension" for his no-contest plea in federal court in October to one charge of income tax evasion.

"That's a reasonable solution to the problem. It's a reasonable protection for the courts and the bar," Agnew said.

Agnew told the judges that their job was to consider how he had practiced law in the past and how he would practice law in the future, not further punishment on the tax evasion charge.

"Should I be permitted to resume my practice, I would conduct myself in a way that would not bring discredit on the bar, the legal profession or the courts," he said.

Alfred L. Scanlan, a lawyer for the Maryland Bar Association, asked during the 2 1/2-hour hearing Tuesday that Agnew be disbarred.

He said both the grievance committee and the board of governors of the state bar association had recommended disbarment and he said that penalty was justified by Agnew's plea.

Judge Shirley B. Jones of Baltimore, head of the three-judge panel, said a recommendation would be made as quickly as possible to the Maryland Court of Appeals, which will decide what disciplinary action to take against Agnew.

There was agreement among the lawyers and Agnew that the no-contest plea amounted to conviction of a crime of moral turpitude, which is a cause for disciplinary action against lawyers.

But in a 12-minute appeal, Agnew said:

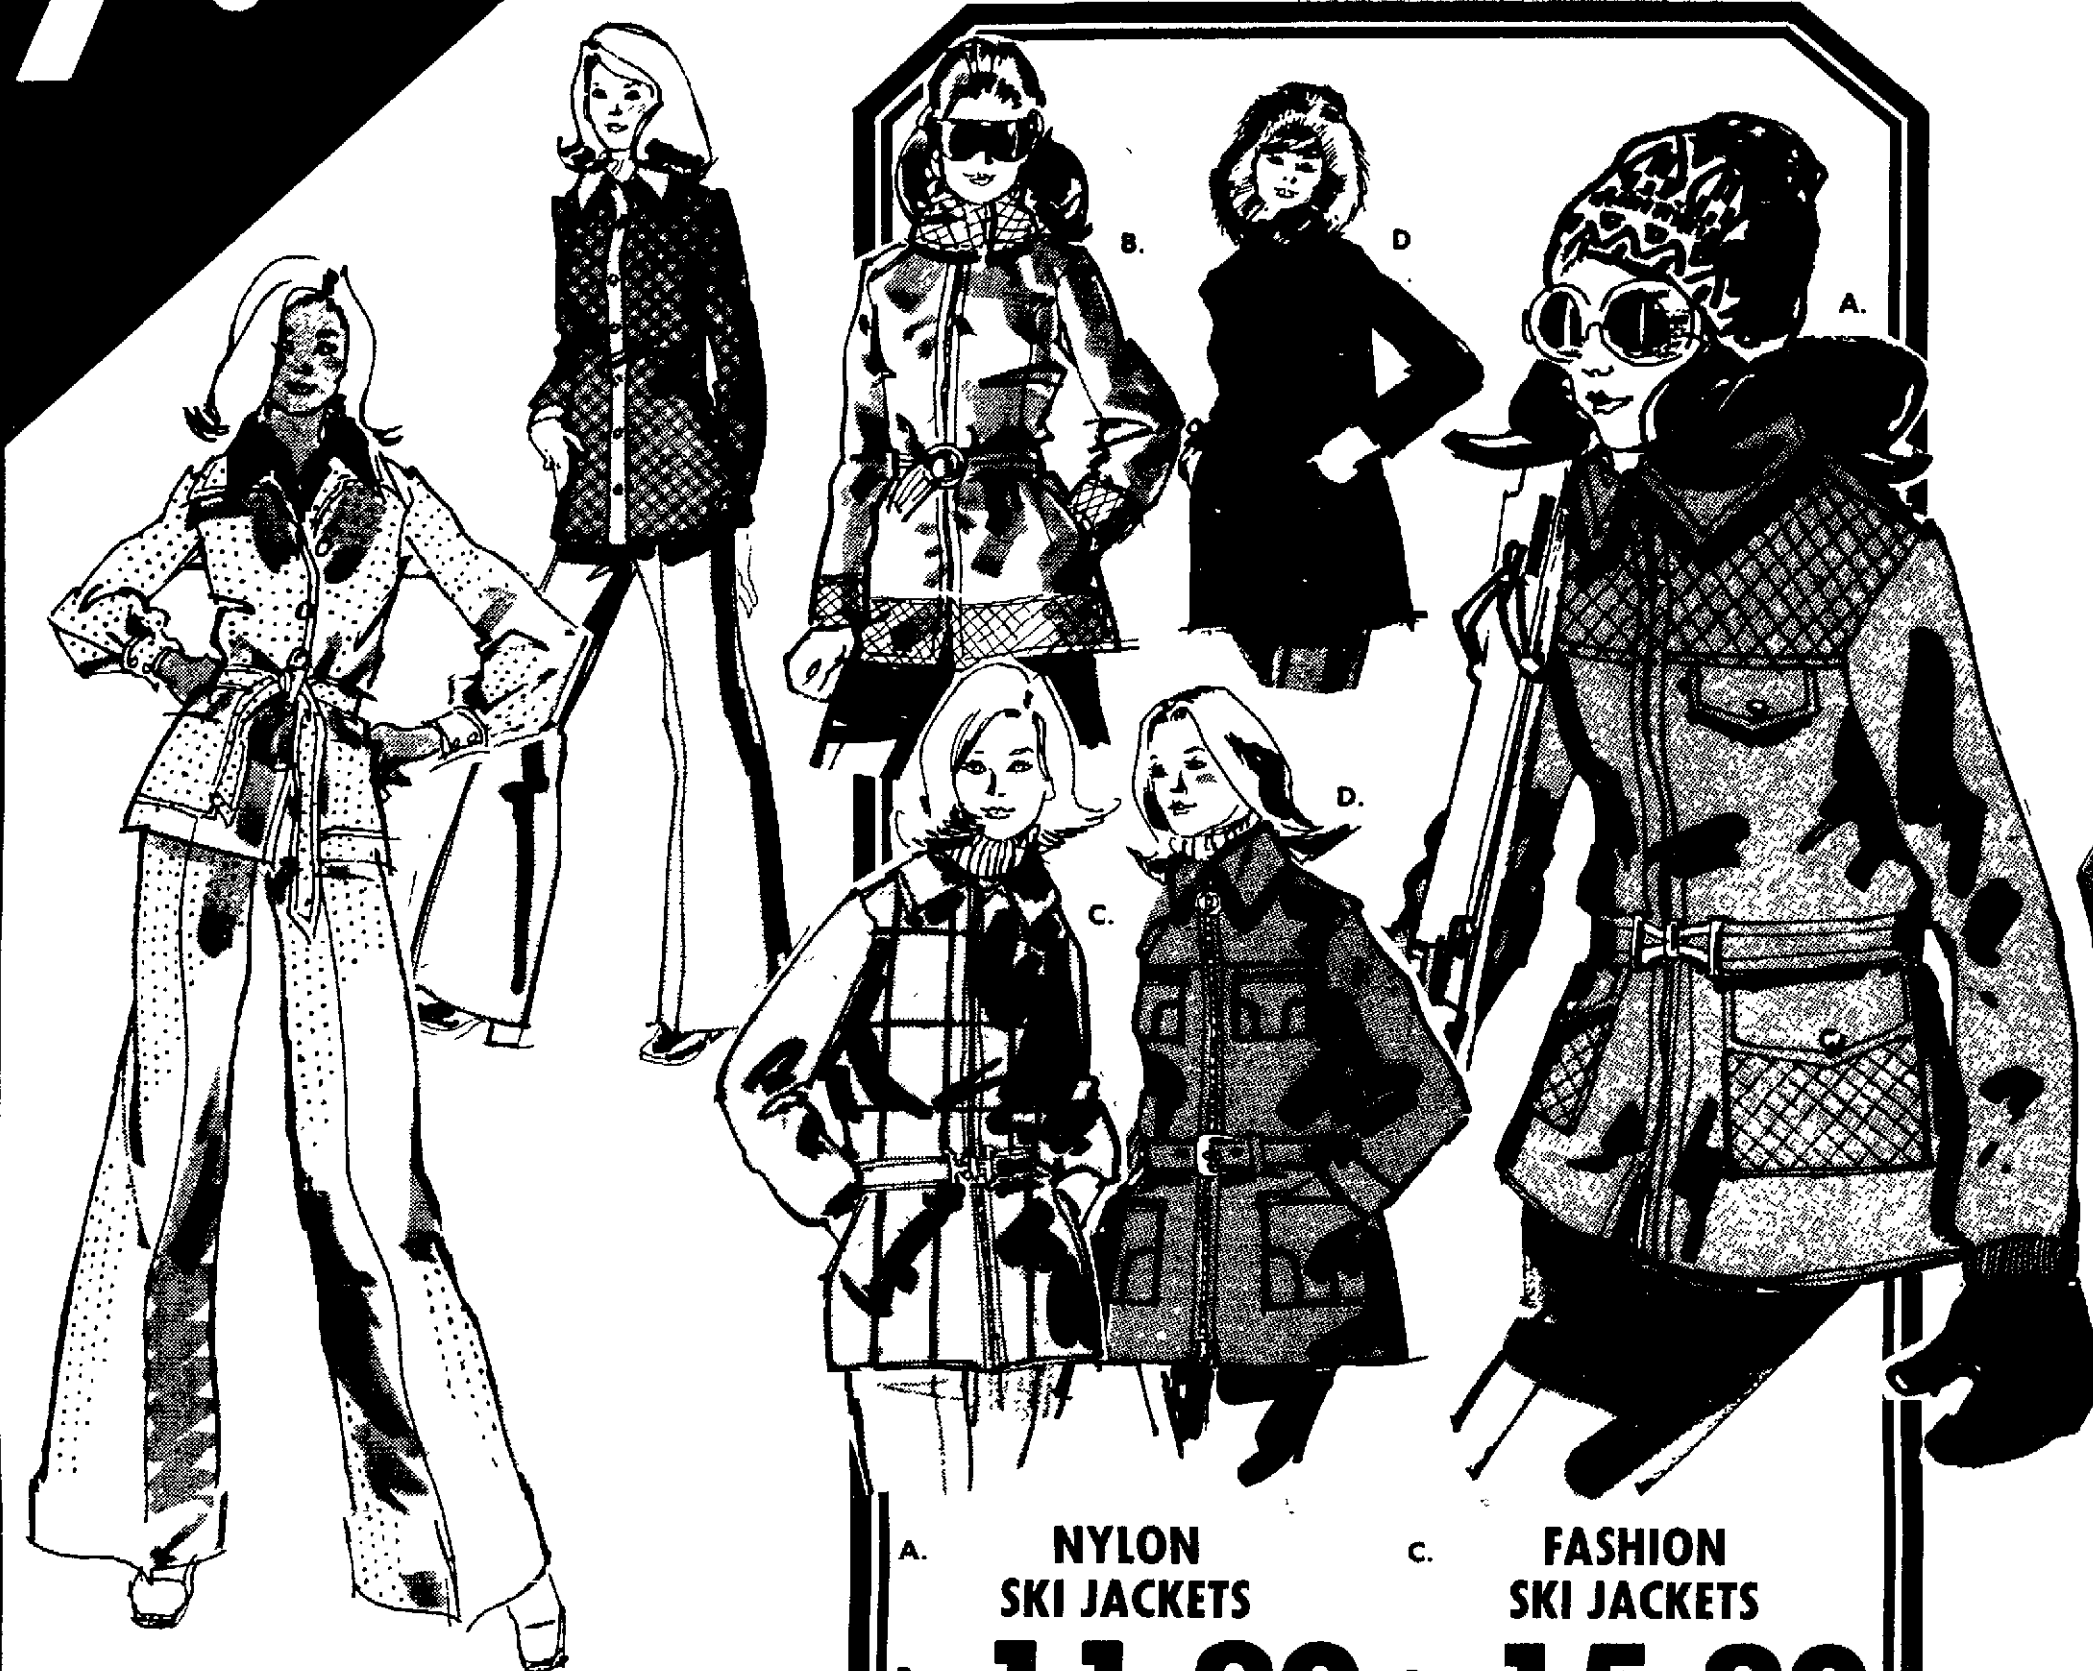

"I had very good reasons for pleading the way I did. Some reasons must remain, for the foreseeable future, locked within me."

Bids opened Jan. 14 for Kaukauna bridge

KAUKAUNA — The board of public works Monday night authorized Owen Ayres and Associates, Eau Claire, bridge design engineers, to advertise for bids for removal and replacement of the Wisconsin Avenue bridge. Bids for the work will be opened at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 14.

Plans and specifications for the work will be available at the office of the Eau Claire firm, but a copy will be available for study by local contractors in the city clerk's office. A representative of the firm presented board members with updated cost estimates for the project amounting to $321,703.

Estimated cost of actual bridge construction was $307,203 and approach work to the bridge was estimated at $14,500. No estimate was made on cost of removing the existing bridge. It was noted that the new span could be ready for use by late summer or early fall of 1974.

After approving the bridge plan, Mayor Robert La Plante asked aldermen to give serious study to possible replacement of the lift portion of the same span in 1976. Work planned currently is only on the fixed portion of the bridge. La Plante said the city could qualify for state and federal aid in replacing the lift span, possibly up to a 70-30 per cent ratio.

Board members voted to permit James Van Deraa, 319 Reaume Ave., encroachment rights onto street right-of-way for a new garage if Van Deraa could receive a variance from the board of appeals on setback lines for the structure. The board of appeals earlier denied a variance indicating they could not authorize encroachment on street right-of-way.

The board approved payment of $33,434 to Donohue Engineering, Sheboygan, for preliminary work done in utility design for the new industrial park as recommended by City Attorney Donald Green. The attorney pointed out that two earlier and larger billings from the Donohue firm were incorrectly computed and should be thrown out in favor of the smaller figure which he said was the amount actually due.

Two employees of the street department were authorized for elevation to the Step C pay grade resulting in a seven-cents-per-hour pay increase. An injury claim for a sidewalk fall was referred to the city insurance carrier and attorney and a request from Kimberly for a joint meeting on cable television was referred to the CATC Committee.

The public protection and safety committee met prior to the board session and approved a salary increase for school crossing guards from $2.25 to $2.40 per hour with the note that the guards had not received a pay increase in four years.

The committee also approved a plan for annual review of pay for crossing guards and agreed to study the possibility of setting up a pay schedule whereby experienced guards would receive more compensation than first year employees.

A letter objecting to removal of parking restriction signs on Kenneth Avenue was referred to Police Chief William Nagel for study and recommendation. Members agreed that no change would be made in the traffic pattern on Oak Street during the removal of the Wisconsin Avenue bridge, but instructed the police chief to make adjustments if problems arose.

Later the finance and personnel committee received five bids for general liability and workmen's compensation insurance, but took no action pending tabulation of the bids by the city clerk.

School districts told publishing procedures

MADISON — The law does not require that Wisconsin school boards make their decisions on roll call votes, but when roll calls are ordered, the published proceedings must include the voting of board members, the state Department of Public Instruction has advised local school officers.

The department said that "ideally, board procedures could require that there be a roll call vote on much of the official action taken by a school board" for the enlightenment of constituents, but such procedure is not expressly commanded by law.

First witness heard in hearing on 1970 Kent State shootings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal grand jury has begun an inquiry that may last two months into the May 4, 1970, shootings at Kent State University.

The jury of 10 women and 13 men was sworn in Tuesday and heard its first witness.

Judge Frank J. Battisti told the jurors it will "require careful investigation to determine whether federal law was violated and, if so, who violated it" during the shootings that left four students dead and nine others wounded.

The jurors were told they would be required to meet three to four days a week for about two months to review evidence about the campus confrontation between Ohio National Guard troops and antiwar demonstrators.

The Justice Department is investigating possible violations of civil rights.

The first witness was not identified but reportedly was a consultant for the engineering firm that prepared charts and a scale model of the campus for the jury.

As a security precaution, Judge Battisti ordered that addresses and other information about the jury be kept secret.

None of the U.S. Justice Department attorneys directing the investigation would comment on the probe.

Peace talks ready

GENEVA (AP) — The way is now clear for the Arab-Israeli peace conference to open in Geneva Friday. The Egyptian government announced that despite Syria's decision to boycott the parley, it would attend. A member of the Israeli cabinet, Transport Minister Shimon Peres, said Syria's absence would not prevent Israel from reaching "positive decisions and settlements with Egypt and Jordan." Jordan is also a definite participant. The United Nations announced that the United States and the Soviet Union would be joint chairmen of the conference and that U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim would preside at the opening.

Warned of bombings

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard warned London to expect more pre-Christmas bombings in a terror campaign blamed on the Irish Republican Army. Five bombs Tuesday wounded at least 65 people in the city, and in Dublin the IRA's Provisional wing warned: "Pressure on the enemy will be maintained on a number of fronts over the Christmas period." Local newspapers said IRA sources told them the London campaign was decided two weeks ago at a meeting of top IRA commanders in Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland.

Thailand assembly

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Nearly 2,300 delegates voted today to elect 299 of themselves to a new National Assembly. It appeared likely that they would give farmers, students and village officials more weight in national politics. Heads of villages and rural subdistricts accounted for about 20 per cent of the electors, and random interviews indicated many of the delegates were determined to make a dent in Bangkok's traditional domination of the national political structure.

Kohoutek studied

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts open an intensive three-week study of the comet Kohoutek as it streaks toward the sun. For the first time, Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson planned to train Skylab's six telescopes on the intruder from deep space, hoping to learn many of its secrets. Until now, the astronauts have concentrated on daily photographs of Kohoutek, primarily to chart its brightness and the growth of its tail, now more than 12 million miles long. The astronauts are in the 34th day of their planned 84-day mission.

Lice in schoolroom

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — A state health official has advised Anderson youngsters to go soak their heads. He's talking about lice in hot water, which is intended to fight a lice infestation that has closed public schools. Because of the lice, the city's 27 elementary, five junior high and three high schools were ordered closed Tuesday night by the city and county health boards. Schools are to reopen Jan. 7. School Supt. G. E. Ebbert said he did not know how many pupils had lice but "it seems to be very rampant and we can't catch up with it."

Energy being saved

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy conservation efforts by Americans are beginning to pay off in many areas of the country, although utility officials and heating oil suppliers say it's hard to measure the exact effect. An Associated Press survey showed less electricity was used in November and the first two weeks of December this year than in a corresponding period last year. In almost every area, however, the weather was warmer than it was last year.

Collusion denied

DETROIT (AP) — Attorneys for Ford and General Motors say the government's contention that the automakers entered into a silent agreement to fix prices on fleet sales is based on innuendo and speculation. "Not a single witness took the stand to say there was an agreement," General Motors attorney Fred Bartlit said in final arguments in United States District Court.

Tests scores lower, but youths still just as smart, exam expert believes

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Just because high school students continue to make lower scores each year on one college entrance exam is no sign they aren't as smart as they once were, says one expert.

"These tests don't say anything about most students because most students don't take them," said William Angoff, executive director of college board programs for the Educational Testing Service.

He said juniors and seniors in high schools who take the tests do not represent a random sampling of a high school population.

Average scores of the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT), one of the most popular of college entrance exams, were 445 in verbal and 481 in mathematics in 1972-73. They were 450 and 482 the previous year and 478 and 502 in 1962-63.

Angoff said he did not know the reasons for the gradual decline in test scores.

But he said changing lifestyles could help explain the drop. He said students who might have scored high 10 years ago might be opting now to skip the tests and either attend a community college or no college at all.

He also cited a sharp decline in the number of high school students who take the test twice — once as a junior and once as a senior.

Angoff said it was customary a decade ago for students seeking admission to prestigious colleges to take the test in both the final years of high school in hopes of getting a higher score.

"So we don't have the second scores for these higher level scorers in our total now," Angoff said. "And that has a lowering effect on the mean." He said that could be "40 per cent of the explanation."

He added: "What we do have is a fact, partly explainable in a most uninteresting way as far as education is concerned. That isn't to say we shouldn't be concerned."

He said the decline in scores does not mean that the tests are getting tougher. He said questions are drawn "according to a very rigorous set of specifications" which have used for eight years.

Tests scores range from 200 to 800, with candidates for the top colleges usually scoring 600 and above. Of 1,014,853 students who took the test in 1972-73, when there were an estimated 3.5 million high school graduates nationally, fewer than 100,000 scored above 600 in the verbals and slightly more than 150,000 went above 600 in mathematics

Found treasure

Two works by Renaissance master Paolo Veronese sat unnoticed for years at Salve Regina College in Newport, R.I. The value of the paintings was discovered when an estimate was made for restoration. The works, "The Astronomer," left, and "A Patriarch," right, sold at a London auction for $375,000, the college announced Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto)

GI who died in Germany to be buried 29 years late

HERTFORD, N.C. (AP) — The remains of Pfc. Simon Francis "Hobie" Stallings have been brought here for burial more than 29 years after he was killed in Germany during World War II. Stallings was to be buried with full military rites today. And officials at Ft. Bragg, N.C., were to explain to his widow, now Mrs. D. T. Hurdle, and his daughter, Brenda Munden, where Stallings was killed and why the body was not recovered until September of this year.

Mrs. Munden was notified that the remains had been identified last Wednesday.

"I was stunned," she said.

Mrs. Hurdle said Tuesday she had a clear recollection of the day she was notified that her 25-year-old husband had been killed Sept. 17, 1944. It was exactly three weeks after his death.

"We got a telegram by a taxicab driver. It was on a Sunday morning. I was 21 years old. It was just terrifying, really."

She and their 3-year-old daughter were staying with her husband's mother at the time.

Mrs. Munden said she cannot remember her father but has not forgotten the day they were told he was dead.

Mrs. Hurdle said the Army was not able to give her any information about where her husband's body was.

"I believed that the Army was sure that he was dead," Mrs. Hurdle said. "I thought he was buried where he was killed and then they couldn't find the body. They looked and they searched for his grave."

The search ended eight years later, in 1952, when the Army notified the widow that it considered her husband's body to be unrecoverable.

"I'm so glad to have his body back," Mrs. Hurdle said. "This is a sad thing for me. It's difficult too. I have been remarried for 21 years."

Adoption nearly final, child taken

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The toys under the Christmas tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gary King are gone.

The Kings returned the presents to the stores after the 3-year-old boy they had taken into their home while adoption papers were being processed was picked up by a welfare worker Tuesday to be taken to his natural father.

"He was just getting settled down, getting to know his new mom and dad and his grandparents, and all of a sudden (he was) jerked up to be moved on," said Mrs. King.

The Kings said the boy was turned over to them six weeks ago by the state Department of Public Welfare even though they were told they would not be the child's legal, adoptive parents until Jan. 6.

King, a psychologist, said he asked department officials if it would not be better to leave the child with the welfare department until January. But they assured him the adoption was settled and it was just a matter of time until it became official, he said.

The couple was told Dec. 6 that the child's grandmother had inquired about him, but "they again assured us it was nothing serious," King said.

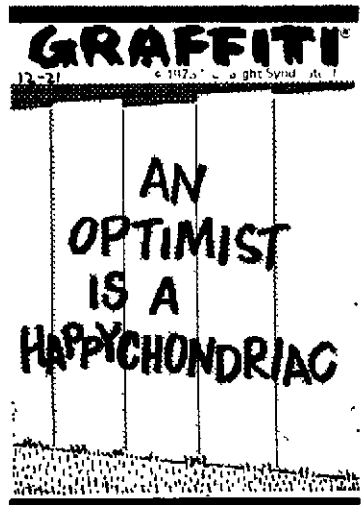

The welfare department told the Kings on Dec. 11 that the child's father had a legal right to reclaim the boy at any time.

King claimed the welfare department apparently failed to check out statements from the mother that the father of the child was not paying child support and could not be located.

"They could have saved us a great deal of misery and pain by just doing their job," said Mrs. King.

A spokesman at the welfare department said the employee who handled the case was ill and could not be contacted.

"He was our first child," said Mrs. King. "And it's just like having a baby in a hospital and after having kept him at home for six weeks, hospital officials coming to claim the baby as someone else's."

EPA hints it won't be too tough

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Municipal officials pressed an Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Tuesday for word on the status of government financial assistance to pollution abatement programs.

They said their cities cannot be expected to meet all the abatement requirements of state and federal programs without assurances of subsidy.

Richard H. Johnson, deputy EPA assistant administrator for water enforcement, replied: "What I can say is that this agency intends to temper its program with common sense."

Asked by a newsman to explain, Johnson said: "I do not believe there is going to be much enforcement against municipalities which have a low priority for abatement in the government's opinion."

Johnson spoke at a hearing, sponsored by the EPA and the state Natural Resources Department to review the possibility that Wisconsin may become the sixth state to resume jurisdiction over pollution abatement.

If EPA agrees, the state would assume authority for issuing waste discharge permits for an estimated 1,300 municipalities and businesses.

Technically, since 1972, the licenses have been required under federal auspices in the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System, designed to eliminate waste discharge into the nation's streams by 1985.

The job of policing abatement can be handed to a state by the EPA as soon as the state shows it can handle the task.

EPA officials say their Chicago office has received about 1,050 applications from Wisconsin waste dischargers, that 406 permits have been forwarded to the Natural Resources Department and that the department has approved 243.

The applicants, officials said, include 600 businesses, 350 municipalities, 10 major agricultural operations, and 90 other facilities ranging from car washes to government institutions.

Johnson ran into questioning from municipal officials who said cities cannot undertake major overhauls of treatment facilities without government funds.

Kevin W. Conlon, Milwaukee fiscal coordinator, cited President Nixon's impoundment of 60 per cent of the funds which Congress had appropriated for improvement of municipal waste treatment plants.

Thomas G. Frangos, director of the state Environmental Protection Division, said that of 400 Wisconsin sources involved in waste treatment projects, federal funds are available for only about 100.

"What happens to those other 300 projects?" Conlon asked Johnson. "Do we have another kind of pollution here: legal pollution?"

Johnson said municipalities must be expected to show some degree of work toward abatement, even if federal funding is not available.

Lights! camera! action!

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislators, in special session to consider the energy crisis, decided Tuesday things aren't bad enough to deprive them of television exposure.

The Republican-controlled Senate voted 25-2 to let a television crew plug in its spotlights and cameras to cover a hearing on an energy bill.

"I am caught between the public's right to know and the added consumption of energy by television lighting," Democratic Sen. Douglas La Follette said, voting for the resolution.

Republican Senators Milo Knutson of La Crosse and James Swan of Elkhorn voted against the resolution.

Other senators acknowledged their interest in the value of appearing before the cameras.

Republican Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek welcomed the prospect so "I can perform."

Republican Sen. Gordon Roseleip of Darlington said it is a good way to get an image to the electorate.

"If they aren't talking about you, they aren't thinking about you," he said.

UW denies hurting medical college's expansion plans

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin says its Medical School's plans for an alliance with Milwaukee hospitals would not disrupt fund-raising efforts of a private medical college.

Dr. Robert Cooke, UW vice chancellor of health affairs, said Tuesday the pact with two hospitals would be unrelated to the Medical College of Wisconsin's expansion plans, for which government funds are sought.

David Carley, chairman of a state study commission on the medical college, said Monday that UW's plans broke a promise not to interfere with the fund-raising effort. UW had said Friday faculty would be assigned to hospitals in Milwaukee, Eau Claire and Wausau to help train physicians.

Medical College of Wisconsin, formerly part of Marquette University, receives a state subsidy.

It has been seeking $18 million in private donations and another $20 million in U.S. loans to build a school as part of a regional medical center affiliated with Milwaukee County Institutions.

Cooke said UW officials knew about the loan application before they announced their affiliation plans.

"A number of financial leaders" in Milwaukee assured UW the affiliation plans would not affect their plans to make donations to the medical college, he said.

Asked about Cooke's comments, Carley called them "patently untrue," saying Cooke knows UW's action was a threat to the private institution's loan status.

The state has only two major medical schools: UW's in Madison and the private school in Milwaukee.

There has been pressure for building a third, and UW-Milwaukee has expressed interest in sponsoring it.

Steamed up on cold water

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A Republican legislator says he is becoming a little steamed up over Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's decision to shut off hot water in Capitol restrooms.

Rep. James R. Lewis of West Bend called the move "one of the more ill-considered responses to the current energy crisis" and said it could create a health problem.

A spokesman for Lucey said Tuesday the governor's office checked with Dr. George Handy, the state health officer, before issuing the order and had been assured there would be no violation of health codes.

Lewis said he sent a letter to Lucey, urging that hot water be restored "to maintain minimum standards of cleanliness."

"Symbolic gestures like this are not going to solve the energy crisis, and could very well prove to be a definite health hazard," Lewis wrote.

"There can be no doubt about the important role disease prevention plays in health care," he said.

Jeff Smoller, Lucey's news secretary, said hot water is still available in the Capitol for use by custodian.

There also is hot water in any state facilities where food is served, as required by an administrative rule, he said.

Karl Mohr, director of the City of Madison health department, said the city has experienced its worst outbreak of shigellosis and suggested persons wash their hands after using restrooms.

Shigellosis is an intestinal disease which causes diarrhea and fever. It has been identified in 215 cases this year, Mohr said.

Dr. Edwin Larkin, deputy state health officer, said there was a "probability" an absence of hot water might create a health problem.

"But it is quite small," Larkin said.

"By itself, hot water is relatively insignificant. But if it leads to a change of habits, such as not washing your hands at all, it could be a deficit," he said.

Lewis was not the only lawmaker protesting the loss of hot water.

Sen. James Swan, R-Elkhorn, said hot water is almost essential in the Capitol.

"After all, I have to shake hands with Democrats all the time," Swan said. "I wish the governor would turn the hot water back on."

GIMBELS FOX CITIES OPEN MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY, 9:30 TO 9:30

Brockington 'scores' for ABC

The yards which John Brockington, running back for the Green Bay Packers, gained this season did more than put the Packers closer to the goal.

It raised $17,732 for a program to bring educationally disadvantaged youth from urban areas to smaller communities to attend high school, hoping to give them a better chance in life.

A Better Chance is the name of the program, in fact. Four communities in Northeastern Wisconsin are involved in it: Appleton, Neenah, Green Bay, and Oshkosh.

Brockington, who is being honored today for his efforts for ABC, agreed to serve as honorary chairman for the fund drive this year.

The year's campaign was based on soliciting pledges in the four communities, prior to the season, to be paid according to the number of yards

Brockington gained during the season.

Final pledges amounted to more than $15.50 a yard for the $17,731 total which will be divided among the four communities, basically according to the number of students each has.

The breakdown of the amounts will be determined today following the luncheon honoring Brockington. However, ABC officials in the Fox Cities have determined what their communities have pledged.

Appleton has raised about $7,585 through the pledges, and Neenah, about $2,494. Appleton's budget for the year is $35,000 and Neenah's, $22,000. The rest of the money will have to come from other campaigns. Industry will also be approached for scholarships.

Through the past school year, ABC has met with a great deal of success. Communities throughout the country have provided more than 400 students the opportunity to study under the program. About 96 per cent of the participating students have gone on to college since the program began a decade ago.

The ABC program in Appleton, the oldest in the Valley, is in its sixth year of operation. In the last school year, 10 boys and 7 girls attended three local high schools.

They live in two houses and are supervised by resident house parents and four resident college student tutors. In addition, each student is assigned a host family as in the requirement of the program, so that he or she can develop a closer tie with a family situation away from his own family.

Neenah-Menasha has 10 students and is in its fourth year of operation. Oshkosh is also starting its fourth year and has 12 students.

High-rise apartment on vocational site?

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Appleton Redevelopment Authority Executive Director Eric Hemphill thinks that a high-rise apartment building might be what the future holds for the 1.58 acres of land now supporting the two buildings of the Appleton Vocational School apparently headed for demolition.

Hemphill, speaking to a Tuesday meeting of the ARA that became informal when a quorum didn't show up, said he will have a report on his recommendations for the future development of the site for the Jan. 8 meeting of the ARA.

At that time, the authority could pass along recommendations to the city on what it could do with the land that lies on the southeast side of the downtown overlooking the Fox River.

ARA Chairman V.I. Minahan agreed with Hemphill that the hillside site would be a "natural area" for a high rise apartment structure, noting that traffic patterns in the area were not conducive to industrial or commercial development.

But commissioners had questions:

— Would the hillside site, which declines steeply to Water Street, support a large apartment structure? The south side addition to the main building of the vocational school has been crumbling because of hill slippage, and a retaining wall along Water Street and the street itself are in need of rebuilding because of pressure from the overlooking hill.

— Is the site more suitable for construction of a smaller apartment building? asked Mrs. Robert Rosenberg. This would lessen the pressure on the hill.

Hemphill, however, said the limited amount of flat land available for development on the site — about one acre — might make it uneconomical for anything other than a high-rise.

Hemphill agreed with commissioners that soil tests and more would have to be done to determine if the site could be used for an apartment dwelling.

John Rosebush, appointed to the ARA by Mayor James Sutherland but not yet confirmed by the City Council, said the YMCA once gave up plans for construction of a multi-story structure because of the hill. The YMCA eventually constructed a low-profile building, northeast of the vocational school site.

Rosebush, former director of alumni affairs and development for Lawrence University, said Lawrence also shied ARA weighs extension of Division St.

The city might have to balance better pedestrian and traffic movement against safety considerations before it can decide whether to extend Division Street south across College Avenue to W. Lawrence Street.

Property that would be needed for the extension on the south side of College is up for sale, and Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Donald Stone has told the city it is an "ideal time" to consider such an extension.

But some members of the Appleton Redevelopment Authority (ARA), while agreeing that the roadway could improve pedestrian and traffic movement in that area of the downtown and work to encourage retail development, also pointed out that it might create a safety problem for students at St. Joseph Elementary School.

The school would probably have to be separated from the church by an extension, commissioners observed as they looked at a map of the area Tuesday.

The authority met in informal session, discussing several issues but unable to act on any of them because of the lack of a quorum.

Stone said not only would such an extension improve pedestrian and traffic movements in the area, but it could also provide additional north access for

City takes steps to annex town 'islands,' landfill site

Appleton's Board of Public Works Tuesday recommended the adoption of six separate ordinances for the annexation of five town islands and the city's sanitary landfill in the Town of Center.

City Atty. David Geenen estimated the total acreage involved in the islands annexation amounted to 75. The Mackville sanitary landfill site covers 114.5 acres. The Town of Center earlier this month asked Appleton for up to $150,300 in fines for dumping solid waste at the site without a permit since July 1.

The city has refused to pay the town a $600 permit fee for use of the site because it contends Center has no right to charge any fee as long as the site operations conform with state Department of Natural Resources sanitary landfill standards. The city now dumps at the site with neither a town nor a DNR permit.

Geenen said the city owns those 114.5 acres and, under a special statute, can annex any property it owns even if it is not contiguous to the city.

The city attorney added that no details as to number of people, buildings, assessed valuation and other data had been worked out yet for inclusion in state-requested information about all six annexations.

The five "island" parcels now belong to three towns — Grand Chute, Buchanan and Harrison. The city can annex the islands without the consent of the town residents involved, according to a law signed this fall by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Ordinances covering all six annexations are expected to be approved in mid-January by the City Council.

In other action, the board rejected an offer by Jerome and Norbert Timmers to sell to the city 1.6 acres of land at the northwest corner of the intersection of Ballard Road and Northland Avenue for $45,000. The property is commercially zoned for a service station.

Geenen said the city was not interested in the land, especially at that "pretty expensive" price.

The board also:

— Authorized Public Works Director Robert Miller to purchase diesel fuel oil at market price since no bids for oil had been received.

— Received and filed a request from the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce to hold up disposition of the old Appleton Vocational School until the Appleton Redevelopment Authority has completed its report.

— Held up action on designation of the former Edna Ferber Elementary School site in Colony Oaks as a future park site, pending action by the parks and recreation commission.

City wants road where two died straightened

KAUKAUNA — Mayor Robert La Plante Tuesday night agreed to write to the Outagamie Highway Commission and County Board asking them to take steps to straighten County Trunk Q, where two girls were killed in a traffic accident last week.

Action was taken at a council meeting in which Ald. James McDaniel (3rd) asked that such a letter be written.

He said that he was sure the county could find money somewhere to improve the road, which he termed extremely narrow, void of shoulders and hazardous to travel. He said there had been many fatal and serious accidents on the road since he started as a county highway employee 20 years ago.

"If something is not done within a year to straighten out and improve the road, I personally will begin to circulate a petition," said McDaniel. La Plante readily agreed to write the letter.

Council members approved a resolution authorizing the Electric Utility to borrow $150,000 for a period not to exceed six months and interest not to exceed six per cent, to be used to — Rejected an offer by William H. Gibson, O.D., for city use of a 60-foot wide stretch along the railroad right-of-way between Appleton and Oneida streets — should he be able to purchase the property for construction of an office building. Miller said the property would not be wide enough for a street. "We can't settle for anything less than 75 feet," he said.

— Turned down a request by Richard Boedecker, new owner of Bloomer's Motel, 2603 N. Richmond St., for 2 1/2 years of interest-free time on a $6,000 assessment for concrete work to be done around the motel in 1974.

Low bid of $11,580 for workmen's compensation insurance submitted by Haen Insurance Co. and low bid of $3,435 for public liability insurance submitted by Employers' Mutual Insurance Co. were accepted.

Approval was given to raising aldermanic salaries $10 per month effective in April 1975 when the terms of all present aldermen will have expired and to increasing the salary of the mayor to $13,500 with expenses of $1,200 effective April, 1974. Former salary for the mayor was $11,628 with expenses of $2,200.

Aldermen approved action of the board of public works in setting a 6:30 p.m. Jan. 14, 1974 date for opening bids for the replacement of the fixed portion of the Wisconsin Avenue bridge.

In other action the council approved annexation of the 180 acre industrial park from the Town of Vanden Broek and authorized City Clerk Karl E. Marzahl to advertise for a public hearing on rezoning of land in the park.

Mayor La Plante reported that he had met with Utility Manager Ernest Mullen and barring an extended period of subzero weather, the city Christmas street lighting would be lit from Dec. 21 through Jan. 2.

He asked private citizens to follow the same dates for lighting of their outside displays, but asked that private citizens limit their lighting to the hours from 6 to 9 p.m. He praised residents for their cooperation to date in adhering to suggested energy conservation practices outlined by the council last month.

Re-election bid planned by Schaefer

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer announced today that he will seek re-election as the county's Branch 2 judge. The court handles criminal and traffic cases.

Schaefer, 45, is completing his first full six-year term in office. He was elected in April, 1968, and then appointed by Gov. Warren Knowles to complete the unexpired term of retiring Judge Gustave Keller.

Schaefer becomes the first person to announce his candidacy for the judgeship, to be voted on in the spring election.

In announcing his re-election bid, Schaefer, who served as the county's district attorney from 1961-68, expressed concern for the growing amount of crime across the country and indicated his belief that community involvement with the judicial process can serve as an effective deterrent to the rising incidence of crime.

"The police alone, the prosecution alone, the court alone cannot solve the problem without the support of all the citizens," he said.

"In what I believed were the appropriate cases, I have sentenced a number of individuals to confinement and I expect that I will continue to do so in the future," Schaefer said.

Second witness corroborates plot

SHAWANO — A second convict Tuesday testified that Robert Henke paid for the $3, yellow-handled screwdriver that failed to stymie a jury a year ago and now is the state's tool in a perjury case against the Neenah attorney.

Thomas Jury, 22, of Appleton, who is serving a reformatory term for burglary and bail jumping, was the fifth and final witness called by the attorney general's office.

Circuit Court Judge James A. Martineau of Marinette this morning denied several motions for dismissal.

Henke is charged with being a party to perjury last Dec. 27 and 28 at Richard Peterson's burglary trial here.

Henke's two Green Bay lawyers began calling defense witnesses this morning. Martineau expects the jury trial to end Thursday or Friday.

Jury, who said he has been convicted of 20 crimes — nine fewer than Peterson — testified that last Dec. 27 he took $5 given him by Henke during the burglary trial and drove to Embarrass where he bought a screwdriver nearly identical to the one Shawano County authorities were using as evidence against Peterson.

He suggested the plan to Henke, Jury admitted, and the two of them discussed the details.

Police found Peterson's screwdriver at the farmhouse he was convicted of burglarizing in November, 1972.

Henke, who was Peterson's attorney, agreed that defense introduction of the identical screwdriver would confuse the jury by making it appear he wasn't at the burglary scene, Peterson had testified Monday.

The state used the prison-khakied Jury Tuesday to supply the final details to what prosecutors say was the screwdriver plot hatched during Peterson's trial.

Jury said he took the tool to the Clintonville home of Sue Ann Kuhnke, where Peterson sometimes lived between prison terms. And, on instructions from Henke, he scratched the new screwdriver to make it look used, Jury said.

Mrs. Kuhnke had testified that, as per

Christmas outing leaves inner glow

They were bundled in their warmest winter clothes. Scarves, wool caps, thick coats and lined boots often made it difficult to get two to the bus seat, but no one seemed to mind squeezing a bit.

After all, many on this tour had not had such an outing for years, and they weren't about to complain.

It was the Christmas Caravan — it is hoped to be the first annual — which the Salvation Army had organized for older people in nursing homes and residents of Oneida Heights. The tour was to view the decorations and lights in the Fox Cities, something many had not been able to get out and see for some years.

The energy crises, unfortunately, bit into the enjoyment, for the usually decorated homes were dark this year.

There was disappointment, too, that the lights on the Avenue of the Angels were not lighted.

The lights were on, however, when the caravan reached Neenah and Menasha, for there the large trees and candles decorating the light posts on the main avenues of the Twin Cities shone brightly, bringing "ohs" and "ahs" from the seven loaded buses.

Outings aren't all lights, though. Christmas outings have other meanings. There is the white snow on the dark fields, giving the countryside the look of peace and serenity; there are the busy city streets, filled with shoppers and children peering into store windows.

There are the carols, which sound ever so much better sung together on a moving bus. They all remembered the words well,

Full-time police for town OK'd

TOWN OF MENASHA — In a 2-1 vote, the town board meeting in special session Tuesday, decided to create a full-time police department.

Supvs. Frederick Miller and Robert Wisner supported the move while Chairman George Strohmeier opposed it, suggesting that "action should wait until an in-depth study of the department is completed."

While the board's action implements an electorate directive from the budget hearing in November, the move comes just 10 days before the study is completed.

Today Danile VandeHey, director for Criminal Justice Planning, East Central Region, said that his staff was preparing a report to be presented at the next town board session.

Despite the board's decision to go full-time, VandeHey said he'll complete the study so that the board can review several alternatives, including contracting with other departments or some form of consolidation.

Robert Weyenberg, town police chief, who for the last two years has been the only full-time policeman, was "very happy" today at the board's decision. "I would have preferred a unanimous vote, but it didn't turn out that way."

For all practical purposes, the town force has been full-time for the past year. Most of the five officers have held the police post as their only job, despite being paid a flat hourly rate and only a portion of the benefits.

Weyenberg feels the full-time status will help the department's morale and efficiency. "At least now they know they've got a job," he said, adding that pay scales are $9,300 for the sergeant and $8,500 for officers.

He said he'll have to hire two more men now to fill the complement of five full-time and two part-timers that he's been authorized. The two new men will be full-time and will be sent through the police science course at the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

During the budget hearing on Nov. 14, some residents suggested that the board's vote should be held up until VandeHey's study was completed. There was a general support for the full-time force, but some asked that a decision be delayed to consider all alternatives which might be suggested by the study.

VandeHey explained that the study "should still help the board implement its full-time force."

The study will include complete cost benefit statistics and how the town can provide additional service such as investigations through contracts with the Cities of Neenah or Menasha or Winnebago County. It would also outline how present personnel could be absorbed.

VandeHey and a police specialist from the Wisconsin Council on Criminal Justice were meeting with Strohmeier today to gather information and statistics for input.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer approved forfeitures Tuesday for several trucking companies charged with overload violations between Nov. 12 and 27 at the Wrightstown Scale on U.S. 41.

They included: Ball Motor Service, Milwaukee, $144 for a 1,880 pound overload; Mississippi Valley Milk Products, Hudson, Iowa, $153 for a 3,200 pound overload; Cooper Farms Inc., Traer, Iowa, $253 for a 4,060 pound overload;

Cherokee Hauling & Rigging Inc., Nashville, Tenn., $205 for a 2,640 pound overload; Gateway Transportation, LaCrosse, $138 for a 1,920 pound overload; and LCL Transit Co., Green Bay, $122 for a 1,120 pound overload.

Milk price increase will sour New Year

The price of milk will jump again at retail supermarket counters shortly after the New Year begins.

The price rise, which has not yet been announced by stores, is the likely result of an increase of 30 cents in the superpool premium that will push the price of bottling milk to $9.39 per hundredweight in Chicago.

The superpool price is a premium above federal minimum prices and is negotiated by 16 Wisconsin and Illinois dairy cooperatives with milk handlers.

The bargaining agency, Central Milk Producers Cooperative, deals with about 90 per cent of the milk handled through the Chicago Regional Milk Marketing Order, which covers most of Wisconsin.

The increase follows a similar one earlier this month when the December superpool premium of $9.09 per hundredweight for milk was announced.

Milk bottlers have said the increase will mean that they must pay more for raw milk and that the result will be an increase in the price shoppers eventually will pay.

"Costs will go up another 3.5 to 4 cents per gallon," said George Stueber, president of Stueber Dairy, Wausau. His firm will increase retail prices.

Truman Torgerson, general manager of Lake to Lake Dairy Co-op, Manitowoc, which is a member of the CMPC bargaining group, said the dairy would increase the price of milk.

"Any time there is an increase in cost, there is no choice but to pass it on like in any other business."

The adjustment in price probably will take place in the first week in January, although the exact amount has not yet been determined.

James Kasten, Shawano, a spokesman for Consolidated Badger Co-op, which bottles Morning Glory milk at De Pere, said no definite decision had been made.

He said that a 30-cent increase per hundredweight normally would result in a penny per quart increase in supermarket prices, however.

Kasten said the increased superpool price was badly needed by dairy farmers, who face increasing costs for feeds.

Torgerson also noted that the price rise might help farmers keep pace with the rising costs of production.

State group offers a salary formula for town officers

MADISON — The Wisconsin Towns Association has submitted a suggested formula for the flexible management of salaries of town government officers in Wisconsin.

As in other levels of government, the usually modest salaries of town officials have been adversely affected by inflationary trends.

This formula has been proposed for town chairmen and treasurers: base pay of $350 a year, plus 25 cents for each resident of the town, $5 for each mile of road and $25 for each million dollars of equalized valuation.

The report recommends that clerks and assessors be paid twice that formula sum, and that other members of the town governing boards be allowed half the rate calculated for the chairmen and treasurers.

Police & fire beat

KAUKAUNA — An employee of Murphy Construction Products Co. reported to police that several 10-foot long two by fours were stolen from a construction project near the stone quarry off Grignon Street over the weekend.

KAUKAUNA — Dennis DeVal, 813 Dodge St., reported that about $50 in change was stolen from his home between 2:15 and 4:45 p.m. Monday. Suspected is a 21-year-old man who was staying at the DeVal home and who left Monday afternoon after having an argument with his fiancée.

LITTLE CHUTE — Ice fishing tackle and equipment valued at about $80 was reported to police as stolen. James Stoeffel, 408 W. Main St., told police the equipment may have been taken from his garage which is seldom locked.

Payment for drugs to be cut back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration announced today plans to pay whenever possible the lowest possible price for prescription drugs under Medicare and Medicaid.

Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a Senate subcommittee that the change would save taxpayers 5 to 8 per cent of the nearly $1.3 billion spent for prescription drugs for the two programs this year.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader had challenged the administration in testimony Tuesday to institute the purchasing reforms which he said would save taxpayers and, by example, consumers several hundred million dollars annually.

Weinberger said HEW soon will propose regulations which would limit federal drug reimbursement "to the lowest cost at which the drug is generally available unless there is a demonstrated difference in therapeutic effect."

He said the action is based on findings "that in terms of quality and therapeutic equivalents, with few exceptions, no significant difference among chemically equivalent drugs has been shown."

The pharmaceutical industry has long contended that generally more expensive brand name drugs are superior to generally less expensive generic drugs of the same basic composition.

Weinberger said the proposed new policy "will result in significant savings in the cost of providing prescription drugs under Medicare and Medicaid."

"Our most recent projections suggest that such a reimbursement policy would have resulted in savings in Medicaid alone of at least $28 million in fiscal 1974," the secretary said. "As more and more patents expire for drugs now found on lists of the most frequently prescribed products, substantially increased savings can be expected."

The projected savings would be greatly multiplied if the administration decides to cover drug costs in its national health insurance plan to be sent to Congress next month, he said.

Weinberger also suggested that the drug industry consider "life-cycle pricing," which would allow the developer of a new drug to keep its prices relatively high the first few years to recover research costs and then slowly drop the price "until it reached a competitive price at the end of the patent life, when comparable products would begin to enter the market."

"We recognize the need for the pharmaceutical industry to secure profits sufficient to encourage innovative research," Weinberger said.

"However, we also recognize our responsibilities to the taxpayers whose tax dollars support Medicare and Medicaid and to the consumers who must pay drug costs out of pocket. That responsibility requires that we as a government buy, or reimburse for, the medication prescribed by doctors at the lowest possible prices," he said.

Nader told Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's health subcommittee that HEW, Defense and the Veterans Administration spend $1.5 billion a year for prescription drugs under an "irrational and demonstrably uneconomical" system.

"If the only issue were cost containment, this alone would merit serious alterations in the economic structure and practices of the drug industry," he said.

Noting numerous studies showing little if any difference in quality between brand name drugs and generic drugs, Nader said, "Surely this is reasonable ground for the immediate institution of regulations providing that HEW will pay no more than the lowest-priced generics under its programs."

He said the American Pharmaceutical Association estimates that "more than 100 per cent savings, or several hundred millions dollars per year," would result from repeal of state laws prohibiting pharmacists from substituting generic drugs for brand names prescribed by physicians.

Nader said he has received no "substantive answer" to his request four months ago to Weinberger to tell Social Security beneficiaries and physicians about Food and Drug Administration studies showing the difference in price but not in quality of brand names and generic drugs.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of Nader's Health Research Group, said campaign contributions from executives of Miles Laboratories and Warner-Lambert may have been a factor in the delay in adopting the suggestion.

Nader joined with Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., in urging a ban on prescription drug advertising and calling for repeal of state antitrust laws and elimination of the present 17-year patent protection for drug firms.

Storm forces many from homes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An estimated 250,000 people huddled in temporary shelters in Connecticut early today after being driven from frigid homes in the aftermath of a severe winter storm, officials said.

And more snow was on its way to the beleaguered East Coast area tonight or early Thursday, forecasters said.

"I'd say over a quarter of a million people are in hotels, schools, fire houses, or family or friends' houses," said Alan Hekking, chief of operations for the Connecticut Office of Civil Preparedness. "I'm trying to get an emergency generator for a hospital and a guy's asking me for a generator to keep his cows alive."

Despite repair efforts, Connecticut power companies estimated that 84,400 customers were still without electricity today where temperatures plunged to just above zero overnight.

At least three storm-related deaths were reported today on Long Island, N.Y., where an estimated 45,000 persons were still without electricity because of Monday's storm. And new deaths also were reported in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Colorado.

In the Midwest, snow continued to fall. Officials said up to seven inches of new snow fell in some areas of Minnesota by midmorning.

Traffic on major Eastern roads approached normal after being crippled because of the storm, but driving was still hazardous in some areas because of icy roads. The Long Island Rail Road, which had either canceled trains Tuesday or reported delays ranging up to three hours, said operations were near normal this morning.

In Rhode Island, where more than 100,000 residents were without power for some period during the storm, officials said only 400 homes still were still lacking electricity.

In Detroit, a private jet skidded off a snow-covered runway and smashed through a fence, striking a tree. The two persons aboard were not injured, officials said. Snow continued falling in Michigan and accumulations of up to three inches were predicted.

Power company crews working 24 hours in New Jersey still had not restored electricity to about 4,000 customers in separate sections of the state.

Record low temperatures were reported in some New York State towns. The lowest reading, although not a record, was 31 below zero at Saranac Lake.

The midcontinent storm dropped six to eight inches of snow across Nebraska and South Dakota.

At Silver Bay, Minn., where 60 inches of snow has fallen in five days, 600 snowmobiles took to the roads to battle a new storm.

Four inches of snow blanketed Denver and more was falling. The Office of Emergency Preparedness urged employers to release workers early Tuesday evening, and traffic moved slowly out of the city.

Traffic in and out of Denver's Stapleton International Airport was halted for a time and some flights were canceled.

More than a foot of snow piled up in the Colorado mountains through Tuesday. Nine inches covered Lincoln, Neb., before midnight.

Heavy-snow warnings were posted from eastern Kansas and northern Missouri through northern Illinois. Near-blizzard conditions were expected over much of Kansas, eastern Colorado and northeastern New Mexico with winds up to 45 miles per hour.

Freezing rain mixed with snow made highway travel treacherous from central Missouri across the southern half of Illinois. And Chicago drivers were hampered as a heavy snow fell and froze to the streets.

A cold-wave warning was out for north-central Texas as arctic cold surged southward into the midcontinent behind the storm.

The East Coast storm that started during the weekend and stretched from Georgia to Maine, left at least 20 dead.

The ice knocked down trees and power lines, causing scattered blackouts in Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey as well as Connecticut.

The Connecticut National Guard was on guard to help utility crews working around the clock to restore electricity to the blacked out areas.

And Cheshire, Conn., fire officials said a house without power was destroyed by fire when the residents went out for the night and left candles burning.

Some work on Nixon's homes is questionable

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon should have paid personally for some of the $1.4 million in work done at federal expense at his homes, government auditors have concluded.

In a 99-page report to Congress issued late Tuesday, the General Accounting Office stopped short of recommending that Nixon repay the federal funds spent on the projects it cited.

But the watchdog agency said Congress should tighten controls over such federal spending and consider limiting the number of private residences at which presidents can receive permanent security facilities.

The report was sharply critical of the "casual attitude" it said was displayed by federal officials and agencies in authorizing work at Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla., homes.

According to the auditors, Nixon himself was at times personally involved in approving some of the projects. They said others were ordered or approved by White House aides, his personal lawyer or architect, or his close friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

The White House did not make an immediate, detailed response to the GAO report, referring instead to previous assertions that the work on Nixon's property was required for security or administrative reasons.

Nixon himself referred on Dec. 8 to the federal spending in an extensive report on his personal finances. He described as "grossly inaccurate" what he termed the widespread belief "that the government improvements (at the homes) have vastly enriched me personally."

He contended that only $68,000 was spent on his San Clemente home itself and $635,000 on the surrounding grounds.

The comprehensive audit reported that $886,900 spent for such major security projects as walls and fences, lighting and alarm systems, command posts and bullet-proof glass at the two residences "do not provide significant benefits to the President apart from protection."

But it ticked off other, smaller projects and suggested Nixon should have paid for them personally because they offered "nonprotective benefits" to him.

Boyle term on funds count is reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle today was given a reduced prison sentence for misusing union funds and appeared headed for a quick arraignment on murder charges.

U.S. District Judge Charles Ritchey cited Boyle's poor health in reducing his original five-year sentence to three years.

The deposed union chief was convicted in June 1972 and had been sentenced to two concurrent five-year terms and fined $130,000 for making illegal political donations with union funds.

The judge ordered Boyle committed immediately to the federal prison hospital at Springfield, Mo. However, a Justice Department attorney said Boyle was expected to be arraigned Thursday in Washington County, Pa., for the murders of Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski and his family.

Some members of the Assembly's Republican minority objected to the provision, saying it would allow bureaucratic harassment of industry.

"This is one of the main 'hurt bills' of the entire session," GOP minority leader John Shabaz complained.

Republican Rep. John Niebler of Menomonee Falls added: "This gives Mr. York authority to run all the fuel companies out of Wisconsin. Merry Christmas."

The Democratic majority leader, Rep. Anthony Earl of Wausau, insisted the Lucey bill is relatively modest.

"To suggest that government ought to do nothing is totally irresponsible," Earl said.

Democratic Rep. Lewis Mittness of Janesville, censuring the federal government and the oil corporations' roles in the fuel crisis, called it "a crisis by design."

Clarence S. Robinson, 34, 2121 S. Jackson St., was fined $50 after he was found guilty Monday of disorderly conduct.

Robinson was arrested early Friday after reportedly refusing to leave Remter's Bar, 1042 W. Wisconsin Ave., after being involved in a quarrel with another man.

The defendant pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The case of Orville Cornelius, 45, route 4, De Pere, charged with battery to his wife, was closed without disposition Monday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Cornelius had been accused of striking his wife in the face with a lunch pail at their home late June 6. The man pleaded no contest to the charge in a July 6 appearance before Schaefer, who closed the case after learning that no further difficulties had arisen between the couple since the charge was filed.

A battery charge against Jack Schiedermayer, 44, 715 Lawe St., Kaukauna, was dismissed Monday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Schiedermayer had been accused of striking his wife several times at home on July 23.

Schaefer dismissed the charge after learning that no further difficulties had developed between the couple since the incident.

The case of a 67-year-old man, who pleaded guilty Monday to a disorderly conduct charge, was ordered continued for one year by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The plea was entered by John C. Schwartz, 610 N. Briarcliff Drive, after the charge was amended from taking indecent liberties with a minor.

The original charge related to an Aug. 28 incident involving a 5-year-old girl near the Schwartz apartment.

A charge of disorderly conduct against Kenneth Smith, 28, 2001 Glenview Ave., Kaukauna, was dismissed Monday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The charge related to an early June arrest in the 700 block of Appleton's E. College Avenue, in which the defendant reportedly was involved in a prowling incident.

Schaefer dismissed the case after the defendant successfully completed a guidance counseling program.

Robert C. Hawkins, 24, 1208 1/2 N. Superior St., was charged Monday with one count each of disorderly conduct and public intoxication. The cases were continued to Wednesday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Hawkins was arrested Sunday evening in the 1500 block of N. Richmond Street after a policeman questioned him for kicking at a parked car.

One of 14 persons arrested in connection with a mid-October drug raid in Appleton was placed on probation for two years Monday by Circuit Judge Gordon Myse.

The probation was given in lieu of an 18-month prison term for Wally Satorius, 18, 509 W. Atlantic St. Satorius was charged with selling $15 worth of marijuana to a county narcotics agent on Sept. 24. Myse ordered that Satorius make $15 restitution to the agent.

The defendant originally had pleaded not guilty to the charge, but withdrew it and pleaded no contest in a Dec. 10 appearance before Myse.

The case of Rodney B. Peirson, route 1, Seymour, charged with participation in 12 burglaries, was bound over to Circuit Court for trial after a preliminary hearing Monday before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 1.

Peirson, 18, is charged with taking part in the burglaries, most of them in the Freedom area, between June 26 and Oct. 9, including one in which a safe containing more than $800 was taken from Freedom High School.

Taken overall were more than $1,000, a large number of tools, dynamite, beer, cigarettes and an electric calculator.

Local rent controls of 'doubtful' validity

MADISON — A pending proposal to restore rent control by municipal government ordinance is of doubtful constitutional validity, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has advised the Assembly, which had asked for his views on the potential effect of pending legislation if it is adopted.

Warren said such a measure, proposed by some Milwaukee legislators, would require a statement of legislative necessity and an acknowledgment of the temporary nature of such municipal enactments.

Artificial trees may be fewer next Christmas

The effect of the petroleum shortage on artificial Christmas trees is being felt to a small extent in the Appleton area but any real impact probably won't be seen until next Christmas.

Petrochemicals are basic ingredients in the manufacture of most artificial trees, but since available supplies of both real and artificial trees were determined long before the oil squeeze hit, the effect on the marketplace in general will be more spiritual than real.

Department managers in several area stores said they had no problems getting the trees they had ordered. "We've gotten all the trees we've needed so far," said a Gimbels spokesman.

A Treasure Island department spokesman noted that the store did not have any shortage and that the demand this year was "pretty good" and comparable to last year's.

Jeff Poronto at K Mart said the store has felt no effect on its Christmas tree supply. The demand seems to be about the same or perhaps a little better than last year's, he said.

Shopko has not had any problems with its artificial tree stocks. The trees were manufactured six months ago, so the supply was there, said a store

Santa Claus and his reindeer will not be the only wonder in the skies over Wisconsin this Christmas Eve.

Mother Nature has scheduled a partial solar eclipse for early that morning in an apparent attempt to get the jump on the jolly gift giver and steal the show.

The eclipse will begin in Wisconsin at 7:40 a.m.; reach midpoint about 8:40 a.m.; and end at 9:40 a.m.

Although the eclipse and Santa Claus' arrival do not conflict, careless viewing representative. "Next year things might be different," he added.

Only H.C. Prange Co. mentioned any problems with tree supplies and that was in reordering.

Terry Prah, Prange area manager, said he was told by the company's supplier that certain styles could not be reordered. "The trees we stock are made of polyvinyl cord. The company, Gordon Industries of Chicago, has stopped producing some of its smaller styles of trees," he said.

The company eliminated three or four styles of domestic trees so that available supplies can be used for the larger trees that bring more profits.

Eclipse is another visitor expected Christmas morning of nature's phenomenon can seriously harm the eyes, resulting in a loss of some or all vision not only for Christmas Day but for life, cautions the Wisconsin Optometric Association.

Looking directly at the sun eclipse can result in permanent loss of vision caused by the sun burning the retina of the eye, an injury that occurs without pain and may not be apparent for several hours or even days.

After a total solar eclipse in March, 1970, there were 134 reported cases of permanent eye damage suffered while viewing the natural event. Two persons were totally blinded.

According to Dr. A.T. Lahmayer, chairman of the Public Health Committee of Madison, the eye's retina has no pain receptors and cannot give any 'Bon Voyage' shown over holiday vacation

The Appleton Recreation Department has scheduled two showings of the film, "Bon Voyage," for children and adults over the Christmas vacation.

The film, starring Fred MacMurray, Jane Wyman and Deborah Walley, is a comedy about an American family's vacationing adventure aboard a luxury liner amid the wonders of Paris and on the Riviera.

The film will be shown at 2 and 7 p.m. on Dec. 27 at the Jefferson School auditorium. Admission is 25 cents.

warning when the sun's powerful rays begin to burn it. The part of the retina damaged is usually that involved with providing sharp central vision.

There is almost no safe way to look at a solar eclipse directly, sunglasses and smoked glass do not offer sufficient protection and the use of a double layer of completely over-exposed photofilm is not foolproof. In fact, 40 per cent of those injured during the 1970 eclipse used some type of protective device.

Binoculars, opera glasses, telescopes and camera lenses concentrate the sun's rays and are extremely dangerous to use in viewing the eclipse directly, according to Lahmayer.

However, there are a number of indirect projection methods that can be safely used. They all involve the projection of the eclipse's image through a small pinhole onto a piece of white cardboard or paper.

Yet the safest way to watch a solar eclipse is to see it on television or in the newspapers and save your direct viewing for spotting Santa Claus on Christmas Eve night.

instructions, she brought the tool to court where Henke introduced it as evidence the second day of Peterson's trial.

Jury and Peterson testified that last spring Henke came to them with "affidavits" he wanted them to sign, absolving him of any wrongdoing in connection with the trial.

Peterson, who was serving a six-year prison term for the Shawano County burglary, said he refused to sign because the affidavit contained lies.

Jury said he made a few changes in the affidavit Henke showed him in the Winnebago County Jail, then signed it, on the advice of his court-appointed attorney James Marquart of Oshkosh, who he said was present.

The affidavit, introduced into evidence by the defense Tuesday, had Jury admitting: He had given false statements to state agents under duress and because he was confused and frustrated; many of those statements falsely implicated others, including Henke, in crimes they didn't commit; he deeply regretted all of the illegal and improper things he had done and was making the affidavit to correct his past mistakes, and he believed Henke to be "one of the most competent attorneys in this area."

Some of the statements in the affidavit, notarized by Marquart on May 16, were false, Jury testified.

Asked if he were afraid of Henke, he replied, "I'm not really afraid of him, but I'm leery of him."

Jury said Henke had come to him before the affidavit signing and told of being investigated by state agents. Henke asked if he could depend on him and Peterson to keep quiet, Jury related. "I said yes."

Jury said he cooperated with state agents (he talked to them 30 times) and gave them statements about the Peterson trial. He had hoped the agents would, in turn, help him get numerous criminal charges from several counties consolidated, he admitted. But he said that didn't happen.

Jury agreed he recently lied to Henke's attorneys, against the advice of an assistant attorney general, "because I felt I was being used by attorneys. I was getting stepped on."

Jury also admitted, on cross examination, that he felt pressured by the state Department of Justice.

Carol Reissmann of Clintonville, whose testimony Tuesday corroborated much of that given by Mrs. Kuhnke, Peterson and Jury, said Henke told her and Mrs. Kuhnke right after the trial "to keep our mouths shut" about what happened.

He came to her house a few months after the trial to ask if state agents had been there, Mrs. Reissmann recalled.

Defense attorneys had her read a letter she wrote to a friend, Harold Huff of Menasha, last May in which she urged him to tell state agents the truth about the Peterson trial and also stated that she believed the state is "trying to get Henke."

the proposed police station destined for construction directly south of the proposed extension.

Public Works Director Robert Miller said today that his immediate reaction was that it was a "good idea." But he said the fact that the land where the extension would run was once a dump site might make soil conditions unacceptable.

Miller agreed, however, with Stone's contention that the extension could encourage better retail development along what is now the longest block in the downtown area.

"Experienced retailers and planners generally frown on long blocks such as exists in this area because it prevents the type of circulations that is needed to develop proper traffic patterns to create a good business climate," wrote Stone in a letter to Mayor James Sutherland last week.

ARA Executive Director Eric Hemphill said the project "logically ought to be done" and said the ARA should "support and encourage" the city to make the move. He agreed with some commissioners, however, who said that St. Joseph should be contacted for its reactions to the proposal before it is pushed.

Commissioner John McKenzie said the extension could be "creating a real safety hazard" for children at the school, which lies east of the church and would be touched by traffic on the west and south (Lawrence) if the extension were made.

John Rosebush, who Mayor James Sutherland has nominated to fill a spot on the authority, said the south side of College between Walnut and Superior streets might be enhanced as a site for larger retail outlets with the extension.

Commissioner Mrs. Robert Rosenberg, however, said the block might be kept long to encourage mall-type development in the future. McKenzie noted that the block is filled with several long-time Appleton stores and is one of the few blocks where there is parking behind the buildings.

Koepe's Restaurant, as well as an empty lot to the west and Katura Electric, are up for sale. These properties would probably be needed for the extension.

Commissioners noted that Division Street might have to be installed slightly to the east on the south side of College to allow it to travel between St. Joseph Church and school.

Hemphill said the chamber's suggestion would be sent to the authority as well as the board of Public Works and the Plan Commission for recommendations. The ARA could be ready to give its recommendation at its January 8 meeting.

Commissioners agreed that it was a long-range proposition, however, noting that the city has already set its street program for 1974.

Miller said today that soil conditions and the cost of acquiring property for the extension would probably figure as major considerations when the proposal comes to aldermen.

"I think general observation of College Avenue might support their (chamber's) premise" that the extension would improve traffic flows and retail prosperity in the that area of the downtown, he said.

away from heavy construction along the river, on the advice of architects who warned of hill slippage.

The main vocational school building now sits vacant and unheated, after the city hired a contractor to shut down the main building — which had been used for nothing but storage — and convert the heating and water systems to serve only the smaller building, which is used by several groups. The move was made to save heating oil.

The heat in the main building was shut off this week. Crews are now draining the system and taking other steps to winterize the large building.

City Council approval of the closing off of the large building was done on the assumption that both buildings would be torn down next summer.

Sutherland, Hemphill and others have said the 1.58 acres of hillside land probably would be worth more if the special use buildings weren't there. The city assessor has placed an informal value of $200,000 on the land, but only $75,000 on the buildings.

Hemphill said Tuesday the site "has some real possibilities" for development. He noted that the 1966 report of the city planning consultant firm of Harland Bartholomew and Associates pegged the site for eventual development as school district headquarters. School headquarters is currently located in the former Morgan Elementary School, 120 E. Harris St.

Commissioners agreed that the current probability that the vocational structure will be torn down might make the site ideal for the apartment structures the planners had pegged for long-range development just east of the vocational site.

Commissioner John McKenzie said the "demand is fantastic" for downtown area apartments. Minahan said it would be a boon to the commercial district, which could attract shoppers who were within walking distance of stores.

In another matter discussed at the informal ARA session Tuesday, Hemphill reported that the H. C. Prange warehouse at 201-203 W. Lawrence St., which has been offered to the city for $100,000, "has possibilities" for development.

Ald. Roylance Pointer (14th), a member of the ARA not present at the meeting Tuesday, supports the city's purchase of the site, which he believes it could sell for development right away or lease until downtown development planning has moved further along.

Hemphill said he couldn't make a recommendation to the ARA until he found out if the site would be within the right-of-way for the proposed new Oneida Street bridge.

"By the same token, I believe the court has the responsibility to consider the available alternatives, such as probation and the imposition of fines in appropriate cases," he added.

for prisoner counseling and rehabilitation. He organized a local corps of Volunteers in Probation, where citizen volunteers donate some of their time to work with young offenders. The program has grown in two years to more than 100 volunteer counselors.

He also has initiated a six-point rehabilitation program for prisoners, so they can receive individual, professional help for their problems. To help implement the program, he has sought to increase the manpower of the county jail's Huber Law section.

Schaefer also has organized traffic safety schools, where offenders can receive fine reductions and license point savings upon successful completion.

Schaefer is a lifetime resident of Appleton, living at 713 E. McArthur St. He is a graduate of Marquette University, receiving both his undergraduate and law degrees there. He is a member of the Outagamie County Bar Association, State Bar of Wisconsin, American Bar Association, American Judicature Society and the Wisconsin Board of Judges.

Outing...

although some admitted they hadn't sung them for years.

And of course, such outings always mean a visit from Santa, who went from bus to bus, and assisted by his young helper, distributed gifts to each rider.

A lot of people had cared enough to make this a happy event. There were the Salvation Army board members, who served as tour guides; there were all of those who had volunteered their time along with the Fox River Bus Lines, and there was a group of young firefighters who gave up their evening to assist.

The Appleton Firefighters Association had issued a call for 14 and 21 men responded. They all came along for the ride.

When the evening was over, the one comment heard repeatedly was, "It sure was fun. Maybe we can do this again next year." And that came as much from the firefighters and the tour guides as from the others.

Snowballs thrown at truck cause accident

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Snowballs were blamed for a traffic accident which snarled expressway traffic for more than two hours Tuesday.

Police said snowballs thrown from an overpass by children struck the windshield of a semitrailer truck which overturned when the driver swerved, blocking all three southbound lanes of U.S. 45.

The driver, D. J. Dauphinais, 26, Ellenburg Depot, N.Y., escaped serious injury.

Lobbyists sought tax break for President

WASHINGTON—The fact that White House lobbyists, led by Bryce Harlow, swarmed all over the House Ways and Means Committee on July 25, 1969, begging the committee to delay closing a key tax loophole, is now becoming a vital and dangerous part of the congressional probe of President Nixon's income tax returns.

The joint congressional Internal Revenue Committee, headed by Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, was asked by Mr. Nixon Dec. 8 to inspect his tax returns for the years 1969 through 1972. One key issue is whether he properly took a $576,000 deduction in those years for donating his vice presidential papers to the government.

Reconstructing events that surrounded the decision by the Ways and Means Committee (also headed by Mills) on July 25, 1969, committee sources say it "has never been under such a siege" as it was from the White House. It was on that day the committee decided to end the private-papers loophole. The White House, desperate to extend the time period for reasons never fully explained to the committee, pleaded to put the deadline ahead to November.

Republicans asked later date But the Ways and Means Committee, backed by the House, refused. The White House lobbying campaign then shifted to the Senate Finance Committee, which, under the righteous indignation of its senior Republican, former Sen. John Williams of Delaware, set a Jan. 1, 1969, deadline. In conference, however, the House version held and the July 25 deadline was enacted into law.

That sequence of events is now being researched by the joint committee, with strong indications the President in the end will be informed by the committee that the delivery of his papers to the National Archives was not legal and that he owes the tax.

The four Republican members of the 10-man joint committee have agreed that an extensive probe of Mr. Nixon's controversial income tax problems is needed. That will include the tax returns of daughter Tricia, beneficiary of a $25,000 trust fund set up by pharmaceutical millionaire Elmer Bobst in 1957.

A footnote: Hard-line Republicans, some inside the White House, are pressing for a Nixon counterattack. They want him to demand that Mills and Senate Watergate inquisitors Sam Ervin of North Carolina and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut also expose their tax returns to public scrutiny.

Wallace recruitment The seriousness of Gov. George C. Wallace's advance planning for the 1976 presidential campaign is shown in attempts of his agents to recruit a top White House aide of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for full-time duty with Wallace.

In contrast to 1972, when Wallace drifted into the presidential contest with neither planning nor organization, his lieutenants are trying to build up a national staff even before his 1974 campaign for another term as governor of Alabama. What's more, he is not merely seeking political operatives by experts in foreign and military policy, such as the Kissinger aide (who must remain nameless).

A principal recruiter for Wallace is William France, owner of the Daytona Beach (Fla.) motor speedway. Since managing Wallace's victory in the 1972 Florida presidential primary, France has entered Wallace's inner circle.

Clawson for Ziegler? The polished performance of Kenneth Clawson, deputy director of communications for the Nixon administration, in briefing the turbulent White House press corps last Tuesday has led some middle-level presidential aides to urge his replacement of Ron Ziegler as President Nixon's press secretary.

The daily press briefings, conducted either by Ziegler or deputy secretary Gerald Warren, have become ritualistic disasters. Furthermore, there is widespread sentiment inside the White House that the press operation under Ziegler is a shambles. Consequently, when Mr. Nixon unexpectedly summoned Clawson to the west wing last Tuesday morning to brief reporters for the first time, some White House aides began pressing for a permanent change.

When the Watergate scandal broke open last spring, Mr. Nixon rebuffed widespread advice (including recommendations from John B. Connally and Melvin R. Laird) that he sack Ziegler. Instead, Ziegler has grown ever closer to the President. But he could still stay in close contact with Mr. Nixon, keeping his post as "assistant to the President," while Clawson takes over the press office.

Clawson is a hard-liner and a devout advocate of the counterattack theory. But many reporters feel that Clawson, a former Washington Post reporter, would respond to their needs better than Ziegler or Warren.

The advantages of home ownership

The case for renting vs. homeownership is being tilted dramatically in favor of renting by a combination of major forces in this era: mounting shortages across the board, soaring prices for fuels and utilities, historically high mortgage rates, ever-rising home maintenance and repair costs, all-time peak property taxes, etc.

But the fundamental point remains—as yesterday's column underlined in detail. If you stay under one roof for a sufficient period, the tilt is still in favor of homeownership. Over the long run, you'll find it cheaper to buy.

There are fundamental points on both sides, though, and you may make one of the most expensive mistakes of your entire life if you do not weigh other key factors in addition to cost before deciding whether to rent or to buy.

Hedge against inflation Today's column will outline the factors favoring homeownership over renting.

(1) Owning a house or an apartment is among the best hedges against inflation available. Over the years, the value of an American home, including the plot on which it sits, has risen at least twice as fast as the rate at which inflation has been eating away at the buying power of the dollars you save and invest. In many cases, the value of well-chosen, well-located houses and apartments has multiplied just in the last few years. The simple fact that three out of four Americans insisted on jamming themselves into 1.5 per cent of the land resulted in quadrupled home-site values for single-family houses between 1950 and 1973.

And inflation in this new, grim era must be even more of a factor in your decision than ever before. Right now, our cost of living is soaring at an oppressive rate of more than 8 per cent a year—and the prospect for the next several months is horrible. There is no doubt that inflation is the No. 1 economic problem of these latter years of the 20th century.

After the roller-coaster stock markets of the 1960s, you well may be utterly disillusioned with stocks as an inflation hedge. Your nestegg may have been appallingly reduced rather than protected by your stock investments. After the upsurge in interest rates and the consequent plunge in prices of fixed-income securities in the 1960s, you also may be thoroughly disgusted with bonds as an investment. In addition, you may have neither the knowledge nor the inclination to try to hedge in any far-out investment.

Deduct interest, taxes But real estate? Your own home? On your own property? That hedge you can understand—and it's a real one.

(2) Owning your own home permits you to deduct both your mortgage interest and property taxes on your federal income tax return—an advantage which, in effect, slashes the mortgage interest rate you are paying by as much as 1 1/2 per cent.

This deduction is "safe." It's most improbable that in any tax reform drive aimed at tax shelters Congress would try to take away a tax break so important to so many millions of average taxpayers.

(3) Taking on regular home mortgage payments becomes a form of "forced savings" plan, in which you build up a long-term asset of prime value. Your paid-off home will represent a big part of your future family nestegg.

Many families openly confess they cannot live at the standards they must (or wish) and also save. Yet, they do manage to save regularly via their home mortgage payments.

In recent years, millions of middle-income families have sold their homes at prices much higher than their original investments and then used the funds to pad out their retirement incomes. Their home sales have been crucial to their standards of living.

Rent is money spent By contrast, the rent you pay is money spent rather than saved, and you end up with nothing to show.

(4) There are many emotional-social advantages in homeownership which are not to be downgraded. You may change and improve your house or apartment and its grounds as you wish. Your long-term financial and geographical commitment, and the fact that you pay property taxes give you a strong tie to a community and a built-in stake in its problems and benefits—educational, social, environmental, medical, financial, political.

Why rent at all, therefore, unless you know you will be in the neighborhood for only a short time and it would be downright stupid to commit yourself to anything as important as home ownership?

Because there are financial and other disadvantages to homeownership too. And there are positive advantages to renting. Tomorrow's column will explain and wrap up the report.

Lottery is proposed

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The owner of an auto repair shop here, upset at the rash of recent thefts in his area, has raised the ire of city police by proposing a larceny lottery.

Ed Dresh says he wants neighborhood merchants to each kick $10 into a pot, with the cash payoff going to the next theft, robbery or burglary victim.

The idea "doesn't do much" for the image of the Wilmington Police, a spokesman for the police department said recently.

Hospitality Kitchen's cupboards are bare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The already tight belts on skid row will be cinched a little snuggler this Christmas.

The Hospitality Kitchen, which serves free meals to the needy, announced Sunday that rising food prices will soon force it to serve meals consisting of only potatoes and water.

"We can't even afford to buy a sack of beans," said a spokesman for the kitchen, which is financed entirely by donations. He said that in the past the kitchen bought salvaged food from markets, got free bread from a bakery and managed to feed between 300 and 600 men each day.

Now, he said, the program is at "a point of desperation."

Christmas Tree Torte

Festive Meat Loaf

On Christmas Eve

Lillian Mackesy

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

Christmas Eve is the time for last minute chores, perhaps the tree goes up in family tradition and joyousness with carol singing and snacking on the side. Maybe traveling carolers will "sing for their treat" as dusk falls or after the darkness has settled in for the exciting wait for old Santa Claus. There are so many food traditions for this special night that it's difficult to suggest new ones.

Some families have an oyster supper after church services. Others take more to snacks of the finger food variety when there's a tree to go up and last minute gifts to wrap and put in place under the finished tree. Whatever the tradition, here are a few ideas with the Christmas Eve look about them. There's the decorative torte which resembles a cluster of miniature trees because it's baked in a special fiests bundt pan with fluted sides. The delicious torte goes as well in any 6-to-8 cup tube pan. This is a moist, light cake with a wheat germ crust. Butter cream frosting, red and green candied cherries help give it a festive look. A gay supper dish to delight the youngsters is the tree-shaped meat loaf surrounded with mashed potato "snowballs" to complete the Christmas Eve effect. One of the finest snack ideas is the delectable fruit and cheese tray with a spread that features cream cheese daringly spiked with parmesan, onion, Worcestershire sauce and white wine. Delicious served with dried figs and apple slices (with the skins left on). The Carolers' cake is just that, designed for eating whether by visitors or family members doing a Christmas sing before bedtime. Matching ups and napkins add a bright, planned and welcome note to the festivities. Then, for more formal dining in buffet style, the suggestion is for Golden Glazed Chicken Breasts. These may be made ahead of time and frozen if there's a party in the offing. No problem at all. Serve buffet style with appropriate candles, gleaming silver and Christmas decor for a most successful party, indeed. And so it goes with a wish for a MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Stir in flour and baking powder. Beat until smooth and velvety. Fold in sprinkles, orange rind and nuts. Pour batter into two greased and floured 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake in preheated, 375-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until cake feels firm to the touch in center. Remove from pans and cool layers on racks. Place one layer on serving platter and spread with preserves. Top with second layer. Spread frosting on sides and top of cake. Place spearmint leaves around bottom of cake. Top cake with carolers cut from paper plates and with tiny spray of artificial fir tree bough. Recipe makes one 9-inch layer cake

Bake uncovered at 400 degrees for about 30 minutes, until tender and browned. Recipe makes 6 servings

Senate, Assembly take different routes on shared tax distribution

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Contrasting approaches to distribution of state shared-tax revenue were approved Tuesday by the Senate and Assembly. The Assembly approved 68-26 a bill for immediate, full distribution of $186.4 million in revenue to municipalities and counties. The Senate approved 17-13 a bill for partial distribution, reflecting a plan proposed by Circuit Court.

How they voted

Here's how area representatives voted on shared tax distribution: Democrats Hephner and Rogers and Republicans Beyers, Ellis and Roth all voted for the Assembly measure. In the Senate, Lorge and Steinhilber favored the bill and Petri was opposed. All are Republicans.

in escrow pending outcome of a court suit filed by cities which insist they have not been allotted as much money as they deserve.

The Assembly plan for full distribution would be blocked by a court order which is in effect during litigation over the municipal challenges to the state's method of calculating the sums.

Should neither house be able to accept

Services slated for former Indian leader

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday at St. Anthony Catholic Church for Joseph Frechette, the first Indian president of Menominee Enterprises.

Frechette, 69, died in his sleep early Tuesday morning in his Neopit home. The cause of death has not been determined.

He had been president of Menominee Enterprises from January, 1970, to September, 1971, when he retired. He was vice president of sales from 1964 after having been manager of the lumber sales division since 1954.

Born Funeral Home, Shawano, is in charge of arrangements.

Prayer is appropriate

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislators received some shortage-related advice when they met in special session to review Wisconsin's position in the energy crisis.

The Rev. George Stacy concluded a ceremonial opening prayer Monday by remarking: "May all our words be gracious and tender today, because tomorrow we may have to eat them."

the other's bill, the matter might be submitted eventually to a conference committee.

"The point is: do we get some partial payment and interest, or do we get nothing?" Republican Sen. Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan summarized.

Among those most eager to get at least some of the money distributed are municipalities whose budgets went into effect under the assumption state payments would arrive on schedule.

Delay of payment is forcing some cities to borrow. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey called legislators into special session this week, urging them to enact measures to get the money moving.

Lucey, the Administration Department and the State Revenue Department favored the Assembly's revenue version.

Municipalities sponsoring the court challenge favor the Senate's plan for partial distribution for the time being.

Both Senate and Assembly versions give statutory authority to distribute interest the state has been earning at an estimated $44,000 daily since Nov. 19, when distribution was to have begun.

The bill passed by the Assembly is based on a compromise endorsed by Lucey, allowing immediate full payment to budget-pinched municipalities while allowing legislators to make any corrections in July as a result of the court suit.

The Circuit Court order delaying full distribution would have to be lifted to accommodate the Assembly plan.

Assemblymen rejected 61-32 an amendment which would have endorsed the judge's order for partial distribution. Lawmakers argued the legislature should not interfere in court proceedings.

"I think for this legislature to intercede while litigation is going on is harmful," Rep. Joseph Czerwinski, D-Milwaukee, said. "We are sticking our nose where we don't belong."

"I suggest the best thing for this legislature to do is to affirm what the court has already decided and give those litigants a chance to settle their case," Czerwinski said.

In the Republican-controlled Senate, Democratic Sen. Wayne Whitlow of Milwaukee led the campaign for partial distribution.

He accused the Administration Department of hoping the legislature would rubber stamp its controversial method of proportioning the money.

"They lost the court battle, and then they come running to our doorstep," he said.

Democratic Sen. Fred Risser of Madison said $20 million to $40 million would be left in escrow by partial distribution.

Opponent wasn't foolish to lead longest suit

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
You usually need a hold-up play when you have about three or four cards in an opponent's long suit. A hold-up play with five cards in the opponent's suit is a real curiosity.

West opened the queen of diamonds, and South smiled pityingly as he took the king. Wasn't it foolish of the opponents to lead his longest suit!

The smile disappeared a minute or so later.

South went after the clubs, and East took the ace of clubs and returned his remaining diamond. This allowed West to take four diamond tricks, defeating the contract.

MUST REFUSE
South must refuse the first trick to make his contract. If West switches to a new suit, South can win and go after the clubs. He may never make a trick with the king of diamonds, but the opponents can get only one club and three diamonds.

South does even better if West continues with another diamond at the second trick. Declarer can then afford to win with the king of diamonds and knock out the ace of clubs. Since East has no more diamonds, he must give the rest to declarer.

When an opponent decides to lead the suit that you have bid, he should have considerable length and strength in the suit. His lead should warn you that danger exists, and the remedy should be clear.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner deals and bids one diamond. The next player passes, and you hold: S-Q 10 4, H-K 9 5, D-10 5, C-K 8 5 4 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1-NT. The hand is well worth a response, but you lack the strength needed for a response at the level of two. Since you don't have a biddable holding in a higher suit, you must make your response in notrump.

Ann Landers

He claims he's bisexual

Dear Ann Landers: What should our attitude be toward a son-in-law who insists he is not a homosexual, but "bisexual." He has ruined our daughter's life.

We learned of his deviation five years after their marriage. I was so ignorant I thought to be bisexual a person had to have two sets of sex organs.

This man (?) has an obnoxious personality. He has never been wrong in his entire life. He can't hold a job because he is compelled to tell everybody off in language you wouldn't believe.

Because of his rotten attitude about everything, our daughter must be the breadwinner. She was once a beautiful girl but after five years with the nut she looks like the little brown wren and he is the peacock.

Our daughter will not leave him because she "loves" him. Can this be love or is she just as sick as he is?—Need Your Advice

Dear N.Y.A.: Your attitude toward your son-in-law is set in concrete. No point in asking me what it "should be." I suspect your real reason for writing was to let off steam, and I'm glad you did. Your suspicion that the girl is just as sick as he is is probably correct. So, accept it, and go about your business.

Dear Ann Landers: You have a lot of advice for people who don't want to drink, but whose friends keep trying to push cocktails on them. How about some help for those who are fighting The Battle of the Bulge?

I've been trying to lose weight for a year. My doctor says I must get rid of 20 pounds. But it's almost impossible.

Whenever I accept a dinner invitation, the hostess pressures me to try this and try that. She says she made it special for me. It's always a rich dish loaded with calories. One "taste" and my willpower is shot.

Is there a solution to this problem?—Hippy Helene

Dear Hip: Yes. Eat at home. Tell your hostess you'll come after dinner—doctor's orders. Then do it. Some people can resist anything but temptation. So—don't go near it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our family consists of seven children, eight grandchildren, five sons-in-law and three parents. This seems to call for an annual outlay of 22 birthday gifts, 22 Christmas gifts and five anniversary gifts. In addition, there is an average of two showers a month—either a bridal shower or a wedding shower for a member of the family or the daughter of a good friend. Then there are the people at work—retiring, moving away or celebrating some occasion that calls for "chipping in" for a gift.

Add them all up and you have 80 gifts a year. Eighty attempts to select something for someone who probably has more of everything than he needs and can use. Also, the day of the $2 gift has passed. You can't get anything worth giving for under $5.

Do you believe all this gift-giving is necessary to show people we love them?—Fed Up

Dear Fed: Cut out all the gift-giving for special occasions and instead buy gifts for no occasion when you feel like it, or when you run into something that seems like an appropriate gift for someone you want to please. This won't be easy but you'll feel better once you've done it.

Love is...

... having plenty of kisses and band-aids.

Double talk makes marriage durable

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) —The art of double talk reaches its flower in marital conversation.

Double talk is saying one thing while actually thinking something else. It is the salve of civilization and, of course, without double talk marriage would be unendurable. If married people started speaking only the truth to each other one fine morning, by nightfall half of them would be divorced—or dead in cold blood.

The one thing wrong with marital double talk, speaking esthetically, is that only too often it descends to mere irony or cheap sarcasm. Which debases it as an art form.

Here are a few typical examples of marital double talk. The quoted remark of the speaker is followed by what he really was thinking.

"You look like you had a good sleep last night, dear." —God, why do all women look so homely in the morning? They all come unglued overnight.

"Why don't you shave before going to bed sometime, darling, instead of after you get up? You'd be able to start to work sooner." —And I'd feel less like I was sleeping with a warthog all the time.

"I'm sure now that the baby will grow up to be a spitting image of you, dear." —The mere thought had me depressed all day.

"And what fancy dish have you concocted for tonight, my pet?" —My stomach feels better on the days you are content to stick to simple survival cooking.

"You look pretty peaked, Harry." —Did you have a four-Martini lunch and spend the rest of the afternoon chasing your fat secretary around your desk?

"You look a little weary yourself, Martha." —Taking catnaps on a sofa all day long must be real tiring to a woman.

"There is no reason at all for you to worry about how your new dentures look. They look simply fine." —It's their sound effects that drive me crazy.

"Your complexion is even prettier now, Grace, than it was the day I led you to the altar." —But why did you have to have two $1,500 face lifts to get the job done?

"It was very thoughtful for you to suggest going to a restaurant tonight, Harry. I did feel like eating out." —And now, my little cheapskate hubby, I'm going to wreck your evening by ordering the $10 steak instead of the $4.50 dinner special.

Keeping water in tub

To keep water in the tub and off the floor, there are self-adhering vinyl clips that prevent the shower curtain from blowing. Called Maxi-Klips, these handy devices can also be used for other holding chores.

"When I ask you what you want for Christmas, Harriet, please don't tell me you really don't want anything special." —That means I always have to buy you something that leaves me in hock until April.

"Well, wifie, I paid off the last installment on the house today. After 30 years, it's now all ours." —So don't begin bugging me tonight that it's time for us to get a new house. Please wait until tomorrow to start that."

"There must be 1,001 ways for a marriage to turn sour, dear, but I'm convinced that there is only one small thing that made our marriage go wrong." —It's you, fathead.

Gift symbolizes separation

BY PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Glendon Perkins and his wife knew just what they wanted for Christmas — a grandfather clock to remind them of their even years apart while he was a prisoner of war.

"We wanted to buy something symbolic of the long, lonely years," says Kay Perkins, 36.

A plaque on the clock reads, "The Merriest Christmas Ever 1973."

Perkins, an Air Force pilot, was held captive by the North Vietnamese from July 1966, when his plane was shot down, until Valentine's Day this year.

"I remember those Christmas Eves when our only family was 20 men," said Perkins, 39. "All you could think about was being home. It was hard to sleep. We didn't have any watches, but we guessed the time. Around 6 a.m. we knew our wives and kids were just opening their presents."

The prisoners whiled away the hours last Christmas putting on Christmas skits. One played Santa. Others were carollers and they held a quiet church service in their cell.

"The Vietnamese were somewhat lenient on that holiday," Perkins says. "They let us have our skit and gave us extra food rations — turkey or buffalo."

But the men were depressed, he said, because the peace talks were stalled and the heavy U.S. bombing of the North had temporarily slackened off.

"Morale dropped," said Perkins. "We just had to condition ourselves that it might be years before we were free."

For Mrs. Perkins and their four children there wasn't much to celebrate last Christmas either.

Recipe repeated

There was an error in the Christmas cookie recipe for Mrs. O.C. Boldt's Maple Nut Wreaths. The ingredients are all right, but the directions were not according to Mrs. Boldt's original recipe handed in. One-third cup of dough rather than a third portion is used for the center of the wreaths.

Here is the rerun:

MAPLE NUT WREATHS

1 cup butter
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2-1/2 cups sifted flour
1 cup finely chopped hickory nuts
1/4 cup maple syrup
Candied cherries for trim

Cream together butter, sugar, add vanilla to egg, then add to creamed mixture, beating well. Add flour, mixing well.

Take one-third cup of dough for centers. Add chopped nuts and maple syrup to this portion. Blend well and set aside.

Use cookie press with star plate to make "wreaths" from regular dough. Make rings about 1 1/2 inches in diameter on cookie sheet. Fill each ring in center with about 3/4 teaspoonful of reserved nut-dough mixture. Trim with candied cherries. Bake in 350-degree oven for 12 minutes or until done. Recipe makes 6 dozen wreath cookies. Remove from pan immediately rather than allow to cool.

"It was painful," she said. "I'd try to kid myself, and not accept the idea that it was Christmas until the very last minute when I'd be too busy to hurt. I wished with all my heart Christmas wouldn't come."

But this year Christmas has recaptured its old meaning.

"I've got my Santa home," Mrs. Perkins said.

Since he came home, Perkins has gained 18 pounds, earned A's and B's in business studies as a college freshman and has been poked and pushed through the stores by eager Christmas shoppers.

"I'd forgotten about that part," he laughed, elbowing his way to the men's clothing department at a crowded shopping mall.

Before Perkins left for the war he was buying dolls, slotcars and bikes to put under the tree.

Now it's hair blowers, clothes and stereo speakers

"The kids grew up so fast," he said, shaking his head.

The children are Ed, 19, Paul, 18, Cindy, 16, and Steve, 14.

Mrs. Perkins led her husband to the lingerie department.

Perkins flipped over the $180 price-tag on a velvet breakfast coat and muttered, "that's something I'll never get used to."

Strolling through the shops, they held hands and giggled like teen-agers.

"Things are back to normal in the Perkins household," she said. "We've gotten to the stage now where it's how good I scramble eggs or fix pancakes."

Despite their happiness at being together, Mrs. Perkins said the holidays are still tinged with a certain sadness for wives and families of men still listed as missing in action.

"It's probably the worst Christmas for them," she said. "Their hopes have died slowly over the year."

Together

Air Force Maj. Glen Perkins and wife, Kay, look forward to their first Christmas together in seven years. Perkins, 39, was held captive by the North Vietnamese from July 1966 until last Valentine's Day. To remind them of the long, lonely years apart, they bought a grandfather clock for Christmas. Wine on the table

BY WILLIAM CLIFFORD

There are three quality wines, red, white, and rose, imported from three different countries, all at a reasonable $2 to $3. The three together would make a fine last-minute Christmas gift or hostess present.

Our red is Mirafiore Chianti Classico from Italy. In the past we've recommended other big-name Chiantis that cost more. Mirafiore is a big-name in Italy (where it used to belong to the Royal family), a new name here with Heublein Wines International among Chiantis, Classicos pace the pack.

Our next choice is a clean fruity white wine labeled Hungarian Rizling. Inexpensive whites tend to be tasteless, low in acid, flabby and flat. Not this one. Well-balanced, dry but not tart, it finishes full and soft.

Portugal sends us so many rose wines that almost everyone knows them and knows whether he likes them. The two big guns currently sell for about $3.50 and $4.50 (a bit less in some states). But the company that makes the superior one, Lancers, also produces a more modest rose called Vinya.

Vinya satisfies the popular taste for things frankly a bit sweet. But this doesn't mean it's just another sweet-and-sour bonbon. The sugar is skillfully balanced by acids including tannin, giving a truly vinous experience.

Vinya is for guests who find most table wines too dry or "sour." And for you when the household budget dictates a bottle costing $2 or less. There's also a bargain half-gallon at well under $5, impressive in its big sturdy bottle, ideal for informal parties.

Cookie Creche

Roosevelt 8th grader Terry Kositzke puts the finishing touches on the colorful and novel creche she created for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kositzke, 548 N. Division St. Made of gingerbread, Terry decorated each figure carefully and colorfully in frosting, using a toothpick to create each cookie figure in the manger scene. Each cookie took about 2 hours to make. They depict the infant Jesus, Mary and Joseph, the three wise men, an angel and such animals as the camel and several lambs.

Golden Christmas cake

The Cling Peach Advisory Board sends holiday greetings in the form of a delicious, quickly made recipe for Golden Christmas Cake.

Made from a yellow cake mix, the cake is large enough to serve 12 persons. Excellent to keep on hand for impromptu entertaining because the cake goes well with steaming hot coffee, delicious and fragrant hot tea or equally well with a glass of mellow port wine or cream sherry.

Prepare one package yellow cake mix according to package directions. Whip cream, sweeten and tint a delicate yellow with food coloring. Drain canned cling peaches, reserving 1/2 cup slices for cake topping. When cake baked, cool thoroughly before slicing each layer into two parts. Cover each of three layers with sweetened whipped cream, then diced peaches. Add 1 cup chopped nuts to cooled caramel; drizzle over peaches and whipped cream. Assemble layers, garnishing top with peach slices and caramel mixture. Spread slices with remaining cream, swirling the cream. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

When they're crisp outside, they're done inside.

Our shredded hash browns now come in thinner cakes. So they cook quickly all the way through. When their outsides are crispy and crunchy, their insides are good and done.

Other frozen hash browns sometimes come in thicker, harder-to-cook-through cakes. That's why they're often soggy on the inside.

So if you've bitten into beautifully crisp hash browns, only to be disappointed by their mushy middles, try ours. They're beautiful inside and out.

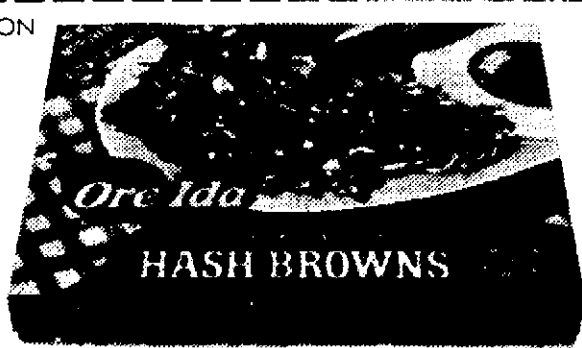

Good eatin' from Boise.

Institute gives advice on cutting hospital costs

A single day cut from the average hospital stay across the country would save the American public between $2 and $3 billion a year, estimates the Health Insurance Institute.

Hospital expenses also could be lowered considerably if certain simple health precautions were followed more frequently, reports the institute.

One way of cutting hospital time, of course, is to stay healthy. While few Americans would disagree with this, the fact remains that a great many people still subscribe to the "what you don't know won't hurt you" theory.

The problem with that rationale is that while it saves on costs of an annual medical checkup, it has a way of filling up hospital beds. As one university study points out, the most frequent preventable cause of hospital admissions is delay in seeking medical care.

The indisputable fact is that preventive care in the form of regular checkups, or visits to the doctor when symptoms of ill health first appear, can detect and prevent many medical problems before they get out of hand.

When you do make that visit to your doctor, give him a no-holds-barred medical autobiography, the institute says. This should include a full rundown on any medications, tranquilizers, "up" and "down" pills or any other drug you may be taking. If you drink excessively, you should not hold back that fact, either.

This kind of information will help the doctor in a more thorough diagnosis of your problem. It may also prevent him from unknowingly prescribing a drug or medication which might clash with something you're already taking.

Besides doctor's checkups, another effective means of staying out of hospitals is to take advantage of community medical facilities. Keep in mind that public health services are provided for most members of the community, not only for the underprivileged. Some facilities are free, others come at minimum cost.

If you do go to the hospital on a non-emergency basis, here are ways to save time and money.

1. Check in between Monday and Friday morning, if you can. Tests and treatment, unless they are vital, are rarely initiated on weekends.

2. Try to schedule your stay for a pre-holiday period such as the week preceding Christmas. Though the season might seem less festive, you may obtain speedier service, not to mention a better chance to get more economical rooms when the hospital is less crowded.

3. Ask your doctor about taking all your medical records along. Any recent X-rays and laboratory reports might mean saving taking the tests all over again and mean one less day in the hospital.

Keep in mind, too, that you can save time and money by donating your own blood before your operation and getting it back if you need it. This is, of course, also the safest way of getting a blood transfusion. Check with your doctor on the procedure.

Unless you feel you absolutely must have complete privacy, a semiprivate room — the kind paid for under most private health insurance plans which today help some 182 million Americans to take care of their health-care bills — often turns out to be ideal. A hospital roommate can summon aid, should it be needed in a hurry, as well as often act as a morale builder.

Remember, the idea is to cut your hospital stay, not prolong it. So, take advantage of anything which will speed that trip back home.

Rosemaling show slated in January

GREENDALE — Approximately 15,000 persons are expected to attend the Fourth Annual Norse Rosemaling Show scheduled for Jan. 17 through Jan. 20 at Southridge Shopping Center's community room.

A touch of Old World atmosphere will greet the public in the Kafe Stoga where visitors will enjoy coffee and various Norwegian delicacies. Rosemaling demonstrations will be held in the Mall. Visitors also may purchase painted items or wooden articles they can paint.

Rosemaling, a Norwegian peasant art, is a form of decoration, that in its design and color, blends with any decor.

Get ready for visiting small fry

Whether for a holiday week, weekend or just overnight, a visit from friends or relatives and their children will be more enjoyable if you are prepared. With children, much depends on how many and their ages. Rules that apply to your own children should also be followed by young guests — where play is permitted, snacks allowed and neighborhood roaming limits.

Since weather is unpredictable, it's smart to have alternate entertainment in mind. Besides suitable indoor games, keep in mind local movies, museum programs and other places of interest to young people. Find out in advance about starting times or hours open.

In addition, there are certain bottleneck situations, such as, hand-washing before meals that can erupt into shoving and good-natured arguments among lively youngsters. This adds nothing to last minute meal preparations. So before time to serve a meal, arrange the seating and the handwashing line-up. Let the youngest be first with an older child behind to help if needed. Be sure to have soap and a good supply of clean towels handy. And ask the last in the line-up to wipe up the splashes around the basin.

Payment for drugs to be cut back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration announced today plans to pay whenever possible the lowest possible price for prescription drugs under Medicare and Medicaid.

Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a Senate subcommittee that the change would save taxpayers 5 to 8 per cent of the nearly $1.3 billion spent for prescription drugs for the two programs this year.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader had challenged the administration in testimony Tuesday to institute the purchasing reforms which he said would save taxpayers and, by example, consumers several hundred million dollars annually.

Weinberger said HEW soon will propose regulations which would limit federal drug reimbursement "to the lowest cost at which the drug is generally available unless there is a demonstrated difference in therapeutic effect."

He said the action is based on findings "that in terms of quality and therapeutic equivalents, with few exceptions, no significant difference among chemically equivalent drugs has been shown."

The pharmaceutical industry has long contended that generally more expensive brand name drugs are superior to generally less expensive generic drugs of the same basic composition.

Weinberger said the proposed new policy "will result in significant savings in the cost of providing prescription drugs under Medicare and Medicaid."

"Our most recent projections suggest that such a reimbursement policy would have resulted in savings in Medicaid alone of at least $28 million in fiscal 1974," the secretary said. "As more and more patents expire for drugs now found on lists of the most frequently prescribed products, substantially increased savings can be expected."

The projected savings would be greatly multiplied if the administration decides to cover drug costs in its national health insurance plan to be sent to Congress next month, he said.

Weinberger also suggested that the drug industry consider "life-cycle pricing," which would allow the developer of a new drug to keep its prices relatively high the first few years to recover research costs and then slowly drop the price "until it reached a competitive price at the end of the patent life, when comparable products would begin to enter the market."

"We recognize the need for the pharmaceutical industry to secure profits sufficient to encourage innovative research," Weinberger said.

"However, we also recognize our responsibilities to the taxpayers whose tax dollars support Medicare and Medicaid and to the consumers who must pay drug costs out of pocket. That responsibility requires that we as a government buy, or reimburse for, the medication prescribed by doctors at the lowest possible prices," he said.

Nader told Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's health subcommittee that HEW, Defense and the Veterans Administration spend $1.5 billion a year for prescription drugs under an "irrational and demonstrably uneconomical" system.

"If the only issue were cost containment, this alone would merit serious alterations in the economic structure and practices of the drug industry," he said.

Noting numerous studies showing little if any difference in quality between brand name drugs and generic drugs, Nader said, "Surely this is reasonable ground for the immediate institution of regulations providing that HEW will pay no more than the lowest-priced generics under its programs."

He said the American Pharmaceutical Association estimates that "more than 100 per cent savings, or several hundred millions dollars per year," would result from repeal of state laws prohibiting pharmacists from substituting generic drugs for brand names prescribed by physicians.

Nader said he has received no "substantive answer" to his request four months ago to Weinberger to tell Social Security beneficiaries and physicians about Food and Drug Administration studies showing the difference in price but not in quality of brand names and generic drugs.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of Nader's Health Research Group, said campaign contributions from executives of Miles Laboratories and Warner-Lambert may have been a factor in the delay in adopting the suggestion.

Nader joined with Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., in urging a ban on prescription drug advertising and calling for repeal of state antitrust laws and elimination of the present 17-year patent protection for drug firms.

Some work on Nixon's homes is questionable

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon should have paid personally for some of the $1.4 million in work done at federal expense at his homes, government auditors have concluded.

In a 99-page report to Congress issued late Tuesday, the General Accounting Office stopped short of recommending that Nixon repay the federal funds spent on the projects it cited.

But the watchdog agency said Congress should tighten controls over such federal spending and consider limiting the number of private residences at which presidents can receive permanent security facilities.

The report was sharply critical of the "casual attitude" it said was displayed by federal officials and agencies in authorizing work at Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla., homes.

According to the auditors, Nixon himself was at times personally involved in approving some of the projects. They said others were ordered or approved by White House aides, his personal lawyer or architect, or his close friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

The White House did not make an immediate, detailed response to the GAO report, referring instead to previous assertions that the work on Nixon's property was required for security or administrative reasons.

Nixon himself referred on Dec. 8 to the federal spending in an extensive report on his personal finances. He described as "grossly inaccurate" what he termed the widespread belief "that the government improvements (at the homes) have vastly enriched me personally."

He contended that only $68,000 was spent on his San Clemente home itself and $635,000 on the surrounding grounds.

The comprehensive audit reported that $886,900 spent for such major security projects as walls and fences, lighting and alarm systems, command posts and bullet-proof glass at the two residences "do not provide significant benefits to the President apart from protection."

But it ticked off other, smaller projects and suggested Nixon should have paid for them personally because they offered "nonprotective benefits" to him.

Boyle term on funds count is reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle today was given a reduced prison sentence for misusing union funds and appeared headed for a quick arraignment on murder charges.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey cited Boyle's poor health in reducing his original five-year sentence to three years.

The deposed union chief was convicted in June 1972 and had been sentenced to two concurrent five-year terms and fined $130,000 for making illegal political donations with union funds.

The judge ordered Boyle committed immediately to the federal prison hospital at Springfield, Mo.

However, a Justice Department attorney said Boyle was expected to be arraigned Thursday in Washington County, Pa., for the murders of Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski and his family.

Storm forces many from homes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An estimated 250,000 people huddled in temporary shelters in Connecticut early today after being driven from frigid homes in the aftermath of a severe winter storm, officials said.

And more snow was on its way to the beleaguered East Coast area tonight or early Thursday, forecasters said.

"I'd say over a quarter of a million people are in hotels, schools, fire houses, or family or friends' houses," said Alan Hekking, chief of operations for the Connecticut Office of Civil Preparedness. "I'm trying to get an emergency generator for a hospital and a guy's asking me for a generator to keep his cows alive."

Despite repair efforts, Connecticut power companies estimated that 84,400 customers were still without electricity today where temperatures plunged to just above zero overnight.

At least three storm-related deaths were reported today on Long Island, N.Y., where an estimated 45,000 persons were still without electricity because of Monday's storm. And new deaths also were reported in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Colorado.

In the Midwest, snow continued to fall. Officials said up to seven inches of new snow fell in some areas of Minnesota by midmorning.

Traffic on major Eastern roads approached normal after being crippled because of the storm, but driving was still hazardous in some areas because of icy roads. The Long Island Rail Road, which had either canceled trains Tuesday or reported delays ranging up to three hours, said operations were near normal this morning.

In Rhode Island, where more than 100,000 residents were without power for some period during the storm, officials said only 400 homes still were still lacking electricity.

In Detroit, a private jet skidded off a snow-covered runway and smashed through a fence, striking a tree. The two persons aboard were not injured, officials said. Snow continued falling in Michigan and accumulations of up to three inches were predicted.

Power company crews working 24 hours in New Jersey still had not restored electricity to about 4,000 customers in separate sections of the state.

Record low temperatures were reported in some New York State towns. The lowest reading, although not a record, was 31 below zero at Saranac Lake.

The midcontinent storm dropped six to eight inches of snow across Nebraska and South Dakota.

At Silver Bay, Minn., where 60 inches of snow has fallen in five days, 600 snowmobiles took to the roads to battle a new storm.

Four inches of snow blanketed Denver and more was falling. The Office of Emergency Preparedness urged employers to release workers early Tuesday evening, and traffic moved slowly out of the city.

Traffic in and out of Denver's Stapleton International Airport was halted for a time and some flights were canceled.

More than a foot of snow piled up in the Colorado mountains through Tuesday. Nine inches covered Lincoln, Neb., before midnight.

Heavy-snow warnings were posted from eastern Kansas and northern Missouri through northern Illinois. Near-blizzard conditions were expected over much of Kansas, eastern Colorado and northeastern New Mexico with winds up to 45 miles per hour.

Freezing rain mixed with snow made highway travel treacherous from central Missouri across the southern half of Illinois. And Chicago drivers were hampered as a heavy snow fell and froze to the streets.

A cold-wave warning was out for north-central Texas as arctic cold surged southward into the midcontinent behind the storm.

The East Coast storm that started during the weekend and stretched from Georgia to Maine, left at least 20 dead.

The ice knocked down trees and power lines, causing scattered blackouts in Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey as well as Connecticut.

The Connecticut National Guard was on guard to help utility crews working around the clock to restore electricity to the blacked out areas.

And Cheshire, Conn., fire officials said a house without power was destroyed by fire when the residents went out for the night and left candles burning.

Big beer bottle gets new home in Menasha

It looks like David C. Lang, 1693 Brighton Beach Road, Menasha, will get that 15-foot beer bottle on the side of the George Walter Brewing Co. plant after all.

At the advice of City Atty. David Geenen, Appleton's Board of Public Works decided earlier this month to hold out for a bid higher than Lang's original $20 offer for the giant bottle. Lang said he planned to use it as a home bar decoration.

He came through with a second bid — $50 — and the information that his grandfather was one of the original shareholders in the now defunct brewery.

But the city got another $50 bid Tuesday from a Hilbert tavern owner — Terry A. Albers of Albers' Bar — who was "interested in purchasing the token, rather than having it destroyed."

During a Board of Public Works meeting Tuesday afternoon, Geenen suggested that as long as Lang had family ties to the brewery, the bottle should go to him, even though an identical bid had been received.

Lang has said he would remove the old symbol of the brewery's once glorious past by himself, at no cost to the city, as is and at his own risk.

In related action, the Board of Public Works recommended discontinuing its fire insurance coverage of the old brewery complex and its contents when the policy runs out Dec. 31. However, the comprehensive liability policy will remain in force.

The city, which purchased the brewery this year, will use the land as the site for its new police station.

Police & fire beat

Michael A. Heesakker, 521 1/2 N. Center St., told police that someone took a $45 drill from his basement between Tuesday and Friday of last week.

Mrs. David Miller, 22, 925 Fox St., Clinton, complained of a sore knee after a two-car accident at Outagamie County Trunk A and the State 125 service road, Town of Grand Chute, about 7 p.m. Monday.

She was riding in an auto driven by her husband, 27, which police said pulled out from a stop sign in the east-bound lane of the service road and entered the path of the second car, heading north on A and driven by Norman R. DeBroux, 39, 2033 Hickory Court, Appleton.

Two persons were confined to St. Elizabeth Hospital after they were injured in a two-car accident on Outagamie County Trunk E near Center Valley Road, Town of Freedom, about 1:20 a.m. Tuesday. One driver, William J. Schommer, 18, route 2, Kaukauna, was listed in good condition after sustaining head cuts, while the second driver, John H. Vanden Berg Jr., 19, route 4, De Pere, was listed in fair condition after suffering chest abrasions and head cuts. Police said both vehicles were south-bound on E when Schommer slowed to turn left into his driveway. His auto was then struck from the rear by the Vanden Berg car, which ended up in the west ditch. Schommer's car was pushed into the east ditch.

FREEDOM — Ernest Doxtator, 75, Oneida, was taken to Green Bay Bellin Hospital for treatment of hip and leg injuries he received in a fall outside a Freedom bar about 10:30 a.m. Sunday. Police said the man had been waiting for the tavern to open when he slipped and fell.

Cash totaling $113 was reported missing after an apparent break-in late Monday or early Tuesday at Family Finance, 528 W. College Ave.

Police said the money was kept in two locked bags, which were taken after a cabinet in which they were stored was pried open. Police could detect no signs of forced entry into the building.

Four boys were detained for questioning after they reportedly sawed off a lock and entered the refreshment stand at Erb Park about 7 p.m. Tuesday. Police said they found the boys inside smoking cigarettes.

All the boys are 15 and were released to their parents after being advised that court action would be pending.

Two persons complained of stomach pains after a two-car accident in the parking lot of Treasure Island, W. College Avenue, about 3:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Injured were Loren J. Hoehne, 2, and Shi-ley M. Lopas, 42, who were riding in a car driven by Susan D. Hoehne, 20. All reside at 325 Center St., Neenah.

The second car was driven by Alice J. Miller, 41, 813 John St., Menasha.

Police said both autos were leaving the lot and collided at the end of a row of parked vehicles.

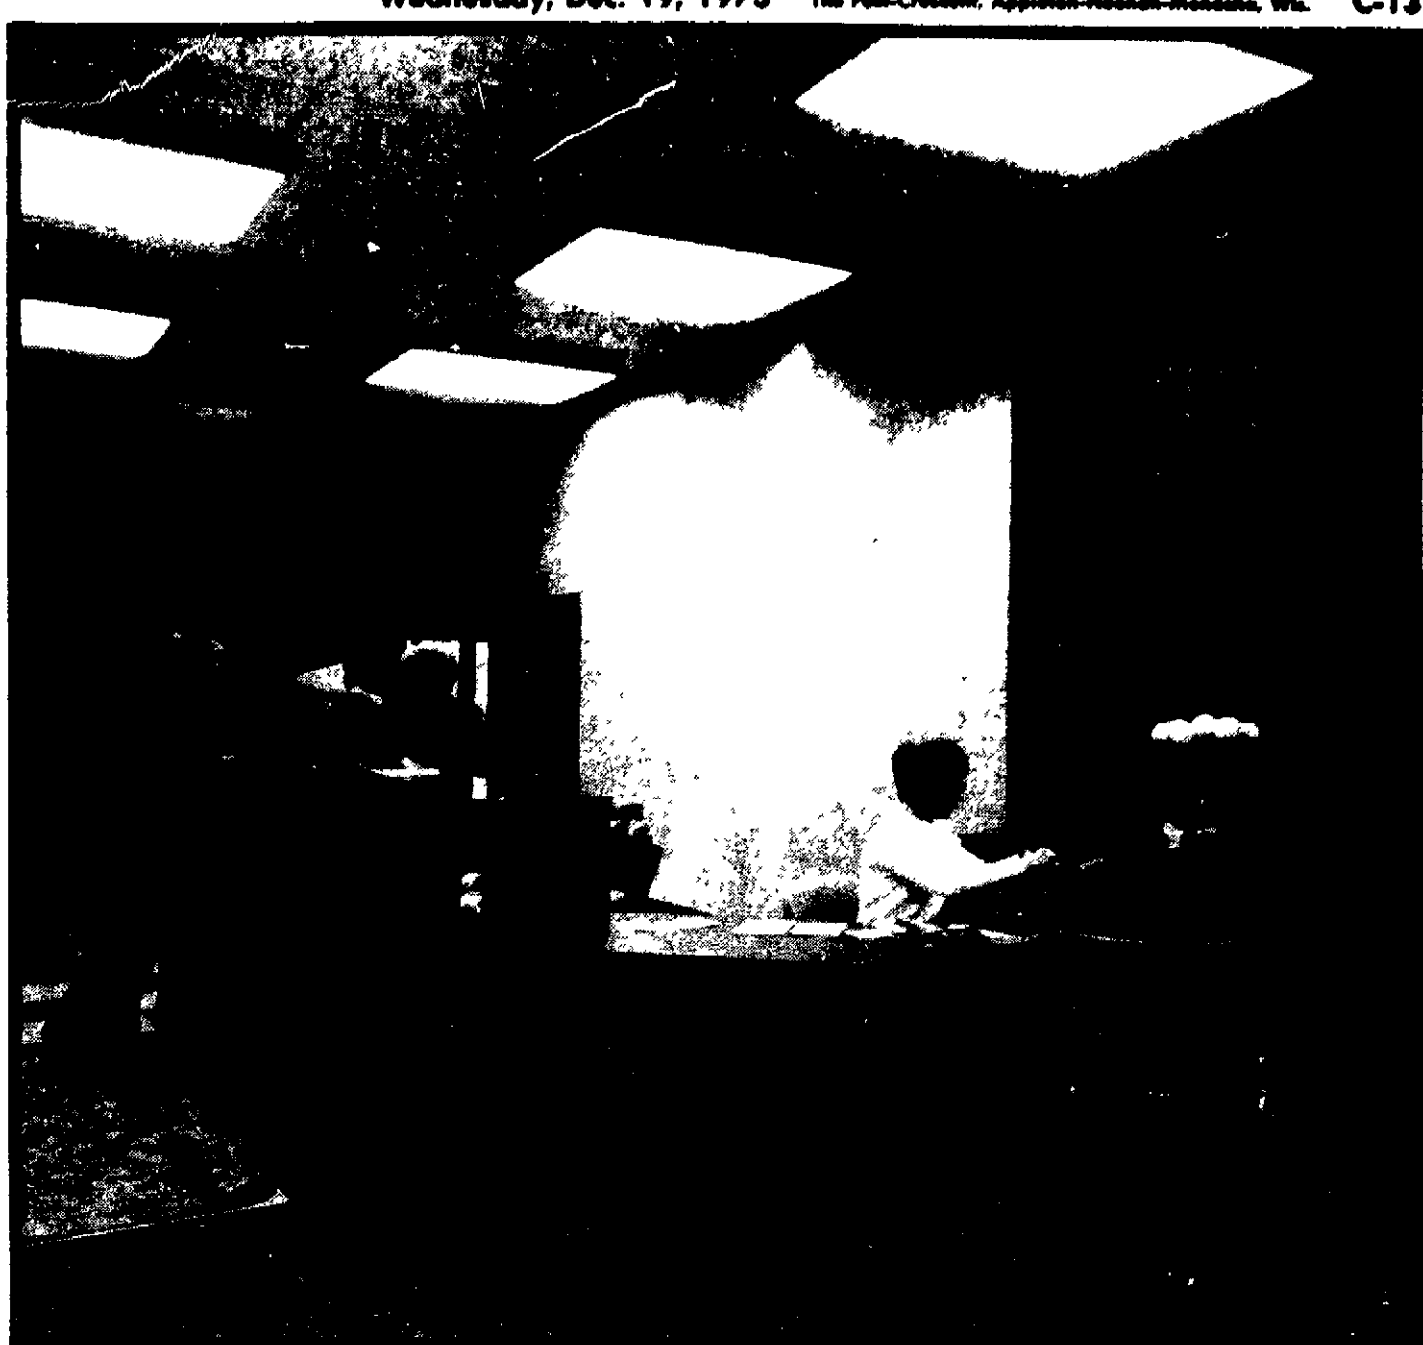

SHIOCTON — Gary Shepard, route 1, Shiocton, told police that his car was vandalized while he was attending a concert Tuesday evening at Shiocton High School.

Shepard reported that a door panel was kicked in and the front fender dented. He estimated damage at $200.

FREEDOX — Charles Bramm, route 7, Appleton, reported damage estimated at $450 to his tractor while it was parked last weekend at a farm he rents at Outagamie County Trunks C and E.

NEW LONDON — Steven W. Southard, 1302 N. Water St., told police that a shotgun, pellet rifle and hunting bow valued together at $146 were taken from his car while it was parked last week in a ditch along Allcan Road, east of the city.

He said entry was gained by breaking a vent window.

Tribute is paid to film pioneer

OSHKOSH — The contribution of Pare Lorentz toward the making of documentary films was cited by the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh last week as it dedicated a room in its library in his honor.

The room, to be known as the Pare Lorentz Collection Room, will house the pioneer filmmaker's contribution of prints of his award-winning films, his vast collection of books on the movies, television and the arts and audio-tapes of talks he has given.

Present for the dedication ceremonies were Mr. and Mrs. Lorentz. Lorentz was named an honorary professor of speech at UW-Oshkosh in 1971 when the university observed its centennial, the first such professorship ever awarded by UWO.

Chancellor Roger E. Guiles in his dedication talk cited Lorentz's record as a maker of films of exceptional merit which have been internationally recognized. His documentary films, such as "The Plow That Broke the Plains," "The River," and "The Fight for Life," have set a standard of excellence against which all documentary films must ultimately be measured, he pointed out.

The UWO chancellor also called attention to the pioneering by Lorentz in developing and producing more than 200 military briefing films for the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II and of his writing and producing "The Nuremberg Trials" which documented the war crimes of the leaders of Nazi Germany.

"His motion pictures and books have been an important part of the educational experience of thousands of students in many disciplines," the citation plaque presented to Pare Lorentz declared.

"Now, through his personal generosity, his motion pictures, books and other materials will be placed in a permanent collection in this room for study by a new generation of filmmakers and communicators," Guiles said.

"This study center is established with the fervent hope that new communicators will derive two important and fundamental lessons from Lorentz's work: first, the necessity of having something important to say to which the communicator is committed; and second, the necessity and importance of saying it well."

During his several-day visit to Oshkosh, Lorentz met with students enrolled in a course on filmmaking and participated in the videotaping of a program to be presented over educational television.

Lorentz honored

Pioneer filmmaker Pare Lorentz, left, was presented a plaque by Chancellor Roger E. Guiles citing Lorentz's accomplishments in the field of documentary films in connection with the dedication of the Pare Lorentz Collection Room at the Polk Library of the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh. Lorentz donated his collection of books on motion pictures, television and the arts, audiotapes of his talks and prints of his various films.

'Snoop Sisters' join lineup

7:30 — 9 — Channel 5 — Those delightful "Snoop Sisters" join the "Wednesday Mystery Movie" lineup, with Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick totally endearing as the ladies who can't resist a mystery. Lou Antonio as their chauffeur and Bert Convy as their detective nephew. The case here: Ernesta (Helen Hayes) gets a telephone call from an old friend — but he's dead. Geraldine Page and many dogs nearly steal their scenes, with Miss Page playing the ex-wife of the maybe dead man.

7:30 — 9 — Channels 9-11 — "Wednesday Movie of the Week: Pioneer Woman" is extremely good, spare, realistic and quite moving. Joanna Pettet is lovely the faithful wife who reluctantly follows husband William Shatner west homestead. An accurate look at what our country's settlers faced, told from the woman's point of view. David Jansen is in the cast.

7-7:30 — Channel 5 — "Adam-12" is a lot of short incidents, including amusing ones. One involves a sidewalk artist from whom Malloy (Mark Milner) buys a painting. The other involves a "meter lady" (Gloria Manon), a militant Woman's Libber.

9:30 — 10:30 — Channel 38 — "Hollywood Television Theatre Conflicts" has "The Carpenters," play for those who like the absurd dealing as it does with a complete alienated family. Mother is always the kitchen, daughter stays in her room, one son is retarded and the other, from college, finds father out of style. The acting from Vincent Gardenia, Marge Redmond, Kitty Winn, John Korkes and Joseph Zandy is very good and some scenes are gripping.

8-9 — Channels 2-7 — "Cannon" (William Conrad) is involved in a case of a rising young boxer (Nick Nolte) who has apparently killed a man. doesn't vary too much from the other syndicate-in-the-ring game shows you have seen.

9-10 — Channel 5 — "Love Story" is a sensitive look at two youngsters (Michael James Wixted and Joe Foster) in the throes of first love who, their parents, he (Larry Hagman) divorced and she (Diane Baker) new separated, have their own affair.

9-10 — Channels 9-11 — You'll have pay close attention to the evidence "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law" since Marshall (Arthur Hill) is defending a young lawyer (Todd Susman) whose client (Rick Ely) has been accused of suborning perjury and most of the is devoted to a refash of the interest earlier case.

9-10 — Channels 2-7 — "Kojak" examines graft and that means danger for our hero (Telly Savalas), who trying to find out who killed an undercover worker for a consumer's group.

Many large charities fail to reveal financial data

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — In this season of charity and cheer, talk about the relative worthiness of charitable organizations may sound a bit like Scrooge.

But a Dickens of a lot of contributions are made at year end to take advantage of tax deductions, and much of the money goes into the pockets of people other than the intended recipients.

The very least to be expected from a non-profit, tax-free charitable organization is full disclosure of its finances and method of operation. Most will furnish such information upon request.

But a recent survey by Changing Times magazine (December issue) found that six of 32 charities receiving requests for information declined to supply any data. Nine others did not supply full financial details. Altogether, 25 of the 32 failed to measure up to at least one of five standards considered minimum by the magazine.

The seven with a clean bill of health are the National Kidney Foundation (not to be confused with the American Kidney Fund), American Heart Association, American Cancer Society, Red Cross, Care Inc., American-Korean Foundation and World Wildlife Fund.

The magazine set up five standards: reasonable administrative costs, full financial disclosure, active governing board serving without pay, effective work toward a legitimate purpose and accepted promotional practices.

Charities failing to reply to the queries include the National Foundation for the Handicapped and Disabled, American Kidney Fund, Pallottine Missionaries, World Changers Inc., St. Labre Indian School and Help Hospitalized Veterans.

Others which sent only partial financial data included Missionhurst Inc., Salesian Missions, Children Inc., ALSAC/St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, New Spirit of '76 Foundation, America the Beautiful Fund, AMVETS, Operations cut back at Oklahoma bases

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Cutbacks in operations at Oklahoma military bases are already achieving energy conservation.

Tinker Air Force Base reports that pilots are using flight simulators twice as much as they had been in the past to replace in-flight training. Aircraft fuel has been cut by one-third, said Brig. Gen. James G. Randolph, Tinker commander.

The Naval Ammunition Depot at McAlester reports that vehicle use is down because about one-fourth of the vehicle keys have been recalled and many vehicles deactivated.

Vance Air Force Base is cutting back money spent for gasoline by seven per cent.

Watch for full measure when buying firewood

"Firewood has become a valuable commodity in the current fuel shortage and buyers should be aware of what they are getting when they contract for stove and fireplace wood.

This advice comes from Bob Probst, director of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture's bureau of standards who says that buyers should be alert to assure they are getting full measure.

He says that wood is sometimes sold by the ton, with sellers "guessing" that a certain size load contains a ton. Loads can vary, depending on whether wood is wet or dry, and buyers should insist on a sales ticket showing net weight.

Many municipalities have ordinances requiring all firewood to be sold by the cord. To prevent misunderstanding, buyers should know that a cord is "the amount of wood contained in a space of 128 cubic feet when the wood is stacked and well stored," generally meaning a stack 4 x 4 x 8 feet.

Some salesmen may attempt to sell a "face cord," Probst warns, but this is not a legal measure and must be qualified with actual measurements when sold.

"If you think you are not getting full measure," Probst adds, "contact your local city sealer or the department's bureau of standards."

Nixon thanks 46,000 for support petitions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says petitions of support bearing 46,000 signatures from residents of two Southern cities are "the best Christmas present I could have."

Nixon accepted the petitions from Shreveport and Bossier City, La., in an Oval Office ceremony Friday.

"You can tell every one of these 46,000 that I'll be here for three more years," Nixon told Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., who headed the delegation that presented the petitions.

Gifts for Tina and Tim

Madison Junior High School students are trimming a special tree this week — one for Tina and Tim. The idea originated with 150 geography students, who put up a paper tree on their door and invited their classmates to use their artistic abilities by making a cash donation and fashioning their own ornaments for the tree. The money will be used to buy gifts for Tina Gruber, a victim of a car accident, and Tim Brinkman, who was injured in a swimming accident. Adding their ornaments to the tree are Barb Cronmiller, left, and Patti Liethen. (Post-Crescent photo) foods. But when the condition continues, the major risk is that it may be a sign of bleeding in the upper digestive tract. You should report it to your doctor at once. A laboratory test will show whether it is blood or something else.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please settle an argument I heard. Is it true that heart trouble is inherited? Also, is it true that tuberculosis can reappear in the third generation? — P.M.L.

Heart trouble is not inherited. Tuberculosis can reappear in the third — or second or any other generation — if somebody is exposed to the TB germ again. It will not recur because of heredity or because your grandmother had it. TB is strictly a germ-caused disease.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use Zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Police & fire beat

KIMBERLY — Clarence Van Hammond, 322 E. Second St., reported to police that his two cars were vandalized, one while it was parked in a high school parking lot. He was not sure if damage to the second car took place while it was parked near his home or some other place in the village.

In both cases the motor had been tampered with, one resulting in about $200 in damage and the second slightly less.

KAUKAUNA — Firemen were called to the James Lorenz home, 1904 Thelen Ave., about 5:15 p.m. Sunday when youngsters turned on the electrical range without removing a movie projector standing on the range. The heat melted parts of the projector and firemen used a smoke ejector to clear the air in the home.

Art Buchwald Harvard blamed for energy crisis

WASHINGTON—Who is responsible for the energy crisis? Many people blame the oil companies. Others blame the government. The automobile companies blame the environmentalists and the Democrats blame Watergate.

But Prof. Heinrich Applebaum of the Yale Divinity School told me who the real villain of the fuel crisis. It's the Harvard Business School.

The professor said, "Almost every sheik now in charge of oil policy for his country was trained at Harvard. Everything they learned there they have put into practice to the detriment of the Free World. The Harvard Business School taught the sons of Arab potentates how to sell oil, raise prices and demand outrageous profits for the black gold they have in the ground. Had these same sons been sent to the University of Alabama, Oklahoma or Texas, they would now be involved in developing football teams instead of putting the screws to everyone."

"Then you think it was a mistake to accept Arab princes at Harvard?"

"It was an absolute disaster. We should have sent them to colleges where the kids swallowed goldfish, got involved in panty raids and drank Looney's Farm apple wine until 6 o'clock in the morning. We should have made them join fraternities and take sorority girls to beer busts."

"All the Harvard Business School did for the sheiks was teach them the laws of supply and demand and the value of fuel in an industrial society."

"I guess at the time it seemed like a good idea," I said.

"It was never a good idea," Applebaum said. "Before Harvard started accepting Arab oil princes, their fathers were willing to own 25 per cent of the wells and were happy to accept air-conditioned Cadillacs as presents. Then the Harvard Business School started turning out oil ministers that demanded full control of the wells, triple royalties and F-5 fighter plane. I assure you they didn't learn that in the deserts of Arabia.

"Every economics professor and business law teacher in Cambridge must bear full responsibility for the mess we're in," Applebaum said.

"But maybe the professors just thought they were teaching theory as far as the free enterprise system goes, and that it would never be put into practice."

"You don't teach theory to people who control 70 per cent of all the oil reserves in the world. We should have sent them all to the Juilliard School of Music where they could have learned to play an instrument."

"Who gave the sheiks the idea to send their sons to the Harvard School of Business in the first place?" I asked.

"The executives of the oil companies. They were all trained there, and the sheiks decided that, since these oil executives were so good at shafting the Arabs, their sons could learn how to shaft the oil companies."

"They learned well," I admitted.

"We should have sent them to the University of California at Santa Barbara, and they all would have become surfers."

"I guess it's too late to do anything about it," I said.

"Perhaps. But I think we should put an embargo on all sons of Arab sheiks, Iranian shahs and Venezuelan presidents. When they apply to the Harvard Business School, we can turn them down by saying the class is filled, but there are openings at the University of Kentucky where they can major in basketball. Let's not make it any tougher on ourselves in the future than we have to."

"Would the Harvard Business School go along with it?"

"If they don't we will shut off their oil. We should shut it off anyway. Their professors got us into this mess. Let them freeze for a while and make them realize what their damn lectures did to the rest of the world."

Police & fire

Spontaneous combustion was listed as the cause of a small fire among oily rags in a first floor industrial arts section at Appleton High School-East about 6:30 a.m. Tuesday. Firemen said damage and only light smoke resulted.

Two persons told police Monday that their cars were vandalized at the parking lot of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 2220 E. College Ave., the evening of Dec. 5.

William H. Wolff, 901 Fernmeadow Drive, said damage totaled almost $63 after an antenna and two taillights were broken on his car, while Glenn W. Ocock, 3518 N. Spruce St., said a taillight was broken on his auto.

The glass plating on a gasoline pump was reported broken during the weekend at the Transport Oil Co. service station, 1601 N. Richmond St.

Police said it was the third such incident in the past three weeks, and each time the vandalism took place on the weekend. No damage estimates from any of the incidents were given.

A 12-volt battery valued at $34 was reported stolen from a company truck during the weekend at Avenue Dry Cleaners, 302 W. Wisconsin Ave.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Offensive body odor may not be from 'dirt'

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father-in-law is 90, active, walks two to three miles a day, weighs from 120 to 124, has a good appetite, eats anything and everything. He's never sick, except for a little sinus trouble and a little arthritis.

The problem: He has an offensive body odor, not the ordinary type. The odor gets into his clothes and bed clothes and is noticeable even in his room.

My wife and I insist that he take at least two or more baths each week even though he thinks one is enough. We also make him use a deodorant.

His room is aired each day to lessen the odor, but after he has been in the room a few minutes the odor returns.

I have heard that older people have an offensive odor; however, I have been around several who did not have it. Have you any suggestions to help me? — H.B.

Some old folks develop unpleasant odors; some don't. So it isn't just a matter of age.

The two or more baths every week would lead me to suspect that the problem won't wash out with soap and water. But exactly what the trouble is well, best I can do — is to suggest some of the things which have been found to be culprits in such cases.

Sometimes some drainage or seepage from bowel or bladder is responsible. Or a local disorder such as a fistula or hemorrhoids can be involved. Some degree of urinary incontinence, dribbling small amounts of urine, could be suspected.

Some skin conditions, and I am thinking primarily of fungus infections, have to be considered. Bacterial infections are a possibility, too.

And what about dental hygiene, or nose or sinus conditions? They can cause quite an odor at times, and you mention he has sinus trouble. It's worth investigating.

Decreased saliva production or inadequate fluid intake, both of which are more likely in an older person, could contribute. And what about diet, or medications, if he takes any? Even vitamins in some instances can produce odor.

But how to find out which of these possibilities, or what combination of them may be at work, is the question. Since you would need a doctor to identify most of them (and to treat them), my suggestion is to arrange for this spry old gentleman to have a complete physical examination.

It would be a reasonable suggestion, at his age. But tip off the doctor privately in advance that the odor is a problem.

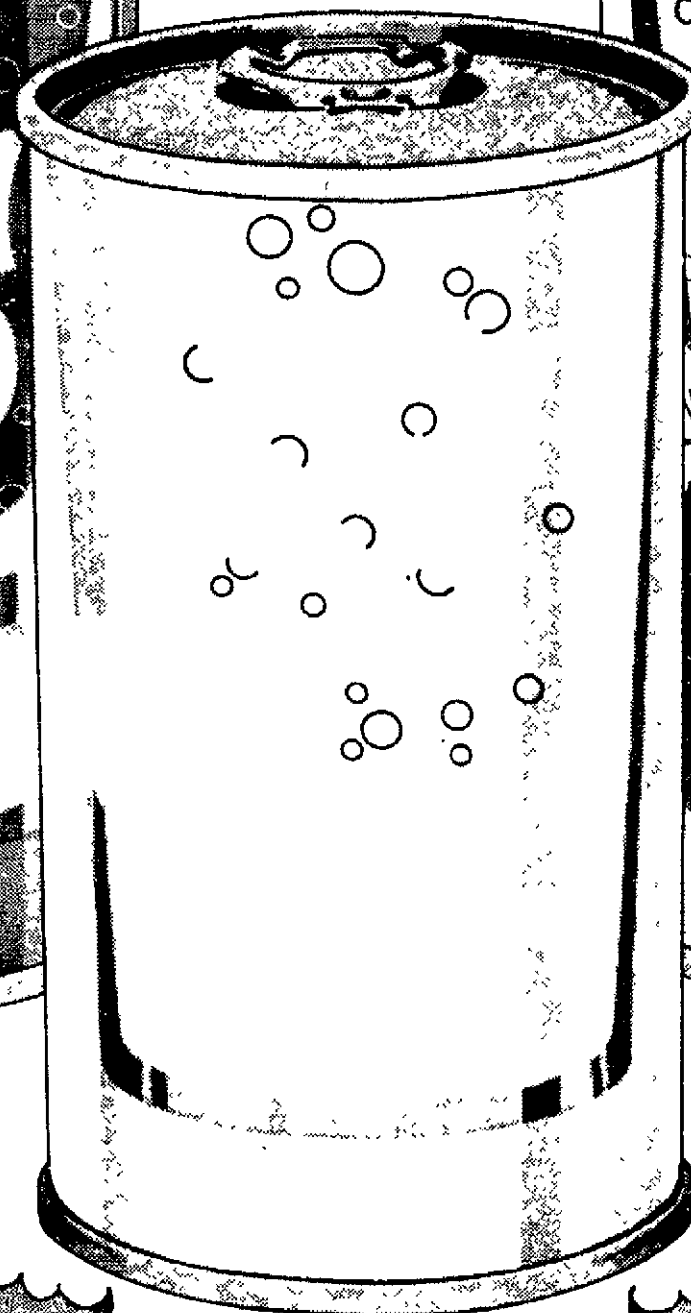

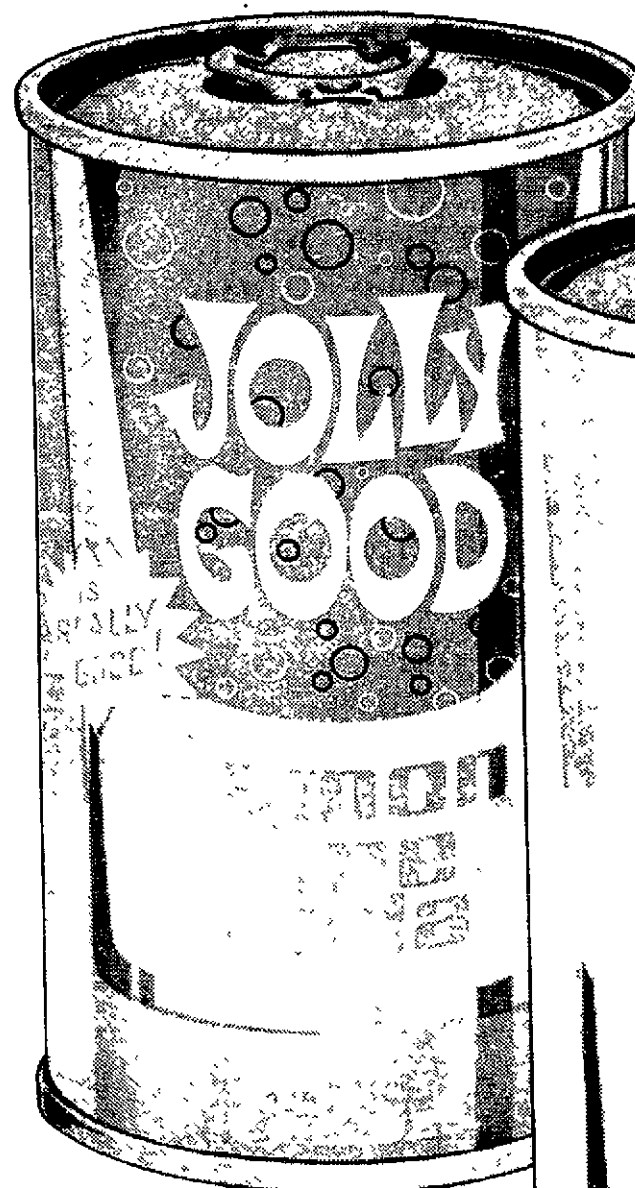

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me what could cause black bowel movements. I don't have any cramps and no constipation. It's just like tar. — Mrs. H.S.

Price's last-second basket beats Bucks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Young Jimmy Price, playing just his second season in the National Basketball Association, finds himself on the spot with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Price is filling in for Laker superstar Jerry West, out for a month with the same muscle pull that sidelined him for seven games earlier in the season.

But Price, who helped the Lakers win five of the games West missed earlier, is taking the pressure well, and is exerting pressure of his own.

In a must game for the Lakers, who had won only two of their last 10 games, Price hit a twisting 25-foot jumper at the final buzzer giving Los Angeles a 109-107 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Tuesday night.

Price scored 16 points, had 11 assists, four rebounds, three blocked shots and four steals—one of them a crucial theft with seconds to play.

Los Angeles led nearly all the way until Milwaukee, helped by a half-dozen Laker turnovers, ran off 12 straight points to take a 93-91 lead with 6:13 to play.

The Bucks seemingly had the game won, holding the ball with 14 seconds to play.

But Price stole the ball from Oscar Robertson, one of the game's best ballhandlers, and the Lakers scored to tie it up 107-107.

With time running out Robertson missed a short jump shot and the Lakers grabbed the rebound with only two seconds left.

A time out gave Los Angeles the ball at midcourt and Bill Bridges gave the pass to Price, who popped in the shot to win.

"It was a low percentage shot and I was off balance," said Price, who doesn't consider himself an outstanding shooter.

"But I felt it was going in after I shot, though I'd never guarantee I'd make it very many times."

Bridges said, "I almost called time out again because I couldn't see anyone to pass in to, then at the last minute I saw Jim."

Price said, "I'd like to think this was a game that will turn things around for us. We were more consistent tonight. For me, it was just a great feeling—hitting a shot to win an important game against a team like Milwaukee."

Gail Goodrich, the man Bridges was looking for on the final pass, scored 40 points to lead the Lakers.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 37 for the Bucks.

Pressure on Big O

The Lakers' Jim Price (15) puts pressure on Milwaukee's Oscar Robertson and keeps him from going in for a layup during Tuesday's NBA game in Los Angeles. Elmore Smith is No. 3. Price sank a long shot in the final second to give the Lakers a 2-point win. (AP Wirephoto).

Gillingham, Ellis and Brockington Pro Bowl picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Guard Gale Gillingham, running back John Brockington and cornerback Ken Ellis of the Green Bay Packers today were named to play for the National Football Conference in the annual Pro Bowl game Jan. 20 in Kansas City.

Gillingham also played in the Pro Bowl in 1970 and 1971, while Brockington played the last two years. Ellis was named for the first time.

The team was selected by the NFC's 13 head coaches.

NEW YORK (AP) — John Hadl, whose restrained passing brought Los Angeles into the playoffs, and Roman Gabriel, whose aerial bombardments made Philadelphia one of the National Football League's most explosive teams, have been voted to quarterback the National Conference in the annual Pro Bowl Game.

Five rookies also were named to the 40-man NFC squad, announced today. They were tight end Charley Young of Philadelphia, running backs Lawrence McCutcheon of the Rams and Chuck Foreman of Minnesota, punter Tom Witten of San Francisco and place-kicker Nick Mike-Mayer of Atlanta.

The Jan. 20 game at Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium will be nationally televised by NBC, starting at 2 p.m., EST. The American Conference, which won last year's game 33-28 at Dallas, leads the series 2-1.

The only unanimous choice in this year's voting by the NFC's 13 head coaches, who were not allowed to vote for their own men, was Dave Wilcox, San Francisco's outside linebacker.

Those making the NFC squad who did not make it last year were Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia, tackle George Kunz and defensive end John Zook of Atlanta, guard Gale Gillingham and cornerback Ken Ellis of Green Bay, center Ed Flanagan of Detroit, defensive end Carl Eller and linebacker Jeff Siemon of Minnesota, linebackers Isiah Robertson of Los Angeles and Lee Roy Jordan of Dallas and strong safety Ken Houston and kick-return specialist Herb Mul-Key of Washington.

All three of the NFC's 1,000-yard gainers—Green Bay's John Brockington (1,144), Dallas' Calvin Hill (1,142) and McCutcheon (1,097)—were selected.

Among the repeaters on the NFC All-Star team are defensive tackle Merlin Olsen of the Rams, who has made it in all of his 12 seasons, and Cowboys' cornerback Mel Renfro, a ninth-time choice in nine years.

Central Division champion Minnesota placed seven players on the team, the most of any NFC club. Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis and the New York Giants are not represented this year.

Lourdes snuffs out Xavier's comeback bid

OSHKOSH — Oshkosh Lourdes snuffed out a second half comeback bid by Appleton Xavier to down the Hawks, 50-48, in a Fox Valley Christian Conference basketball game here Tuesday night.

The Knights held a 22-19 halftime lead but Xavier rallied to go ahead 32-30 at the end of the third quarter.

With 5:47 left in the game, Pat McKenzie rimmed three straight baskets for Lourdes and the Knights surged from a 36-35 deficit to a 41-38 lead.

The teams exchanged baskets until Lourdes edged to a 48-44 margin with 1:33 remaining. Xavier's Bob Mullen then tipped in a missed attempt with 1:10 left to bring the Hawks within 48-46 but Mike Baerwald hit both shots in a bonus free throw situation to put Lourdes back up by four (50-46).

Mullen connected on a long jumper with 25 seconds to play and Xavier trailed by 50-48.

The Hawks forced a Knight turnover with seven seconds showing and then worked the ball near the lane but Lourdes' Jim Angle batted away a pass just before the horn sounded.

The Knights' Ken Korsch netted 16 points to lead all scorers. Baerwald added 12 for the Knights.

Boya's 15 points led Xavier in scoring. Tom Floodstrand followed with 11 and Rich Kewley chipped in 10 for the Hawks.

Xavier made two more floor shots than Lourdes (22-20) but the Knights converted 10 free throws to the Hawks' four charity tosses.

Lourdes is 4-1 in FVCC play while Xavier skidded to 2-4 in league action.

Brockington eyes rich pact

By LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent news service

GREEN BAY — The draft, the trade market and a searching evaluation of personnel are not the only items on Dan Devine's imposing post-season agenda.

Immediately ahead of the Packer coach, already at work on these items, is another major project — player contracts.

And chief among these will be securing the signature of three-time 1,000-yarder John Brockington, which could be a project in itself.

Devine's task may be complicated by the embryonic World Football League, which has been tossing about some astronomical figures recently and only Tuesday announced it is planning to open a 20-game schedule next July.

Although he assures he would prefer to play in Green Bay, a "motion" Devine assures he emphatically seconds—Brockington said Tuesday, "I'd have to listen if the WFL approached me."

"But I still have an option year left on my Packer contract," he pointed out. "I don't know how those legal things go."

The same clause applies to the six other Packers whose contracts expired with the close of the '73 season — Jon Stagers, Mike McCoy, Alden Roche, Jim Hill, Leland Glass and Perry Williams.

In other words, they are bound to the Packers for 1974, which means they must be re-signed for '74. The alternative is to play out next season under option, which means all of them would become free agents if not signed before May 1, 1975.

"If the World League offered a lot of dollars," Brockington noted, "I'd have to listen. Football's a funny game. You mess around and get hurt and you've got problems. If somebody offered a lot of money, you have to try to get it."

Brockington who has made no secret of the fact he will be seeking a "big package" from the Packers, added, "I read where Joe Namath was offered $2,000,000 by the WFL. Man, that's an awful lot of money. I don't see how the Jets could stand in his way, if that's true. That's a hell of an opportunity."

Thus far, the new league has not contacted him personally, he said. "I haven't talked to anybody from the WFL," the former Ohio State All American reported, "but they sent my lawyer some information."

Brockington, relaxing on a table in the visitors' dressing room at Lambeau Field, was characteristically candid in assessing his value to the Packers.

"I feel I'm as valuable to this team as Joe Namath is to the Jets," he said. "He's in a different bracket, of course, he's a quarterback. Plus he's in a different situation. He's in New York and he's everything everything the Jets have. Without him, they're bad."

"It's a funny thing how the money thing works in pro football. Namath has been paid a lot of money (a reported $250,000 a year) and he hasn't played a lot of games for the Jets. You'd also think a running back would get more money because he's not able to play as long, on the average, as a quarterback, but it doesn't work that way."

Brockington is scheduled to learn about the Packer "scale" for 1,000-yard-type fullbacks very shortly.

"My attorney will be negotiating with Coach Devine next month," he said. "I think we'll start right after Jan. 1."

"I feel I have some good talking points — I've gained 1,000 yards three years in a row, I've led the conference in rushing twice, I've been picked for the Pro Bowl all three years, I was an all-pro as a rookie and I was second in rushing in the league to O. J. (Simpson, of course) this year."

Chuckling, he added, "Way behind O. J., almost 900 yards behind O. J."

Hopeful that Devine will find his arguments convincing, Brockington conceded, "I would prefer to play for the Packers, so I hope we can work things out. I've been here three years and I've been successful here, so I'd rather play here. For one thing, it's obviously better for me to play for a run-oriented team."

"I'm planning to come back here next year. But I'd hate to come back as a free agent because of the possibility of injury. I hope that's not the case."

Devine is in devout agreement. "I'd like very much to have John finish out his career here," he said. "I'm confident things can be worked out."

Finley sues Williams

BOSTON (AP) — Retiring American League President Joe Cronin juggled a hot baseball situation today in a hearing for Oakland Athletics owner Charlie Finley, a long-time maverick who has gone to court.

Finley filed a suit in U.S. District Court in San Francisco Tuesday, seeking to prevent Manager Dick Williams from working for any other pro baseball club for the next two years. Williams was named the only defendant.

The action came shortly after Cronin deferred a decision in Detroit's hiring of Manager Ralph Houk by the Tigers. Cronin met for four hours behind closed doors with the Tigers and the New York Yankees. The Yanks were left without a manager by Houk's resignation on the last day of the 1973 season.

In his court suit, Finley asked that Williams, who signed as manager of the Yankees last week, be prevented from joining any other club until fulfilling his Oakland contract through the 1975 season.

Later, contacted in Chicago, Finley said he would come out fighting in his hearing with Cronin.

"As I've always said, if they (the Yankees) want Williams, they can have him with my blessings, as long as they are willing to compensate me."

Finley reportedly has refused a New York offer of veteran second baseman Horace Clarke and, later, a $150,000 cash deal along with some minor league players.

Asked what compensation he would want, Finley said:

"Well, mostly players who are good prospects. From our law suit filed today, at least they know we mean business."

Cronin, who will turn over the league presidency to Yankees General Manager Lee MacPhail Jan. 1, was faced with one of his toughest decisions since accepting the job in 1959.

Tom Mavroff rolls 779

Tom Mavroff, a 17-year-old, smashed the second national honor score within the span of two days Tuesday as he posted a 779 in the Appleton East League at Sabre Lanes.

Mavroff blasted a 727 in the Senior Travelling League at Super Bowl Monday night.

He started with a 226 opener Tuesday, followed with a booming 263 and finished with a 290 singleton. In the Senior Travelling League, he started with a rousing 277, followed with 244 and tailed off to 206.

In his 277 game, Mavroff opened with five strikes, spared the sixth frame and

Tuesday, Mavroff finished his 263 game with seven strikes. He opened the 290 line by wobbling the four-pin and converting for the spare before rolling 11 straight strikes to give him 19 strikes out of a possible 20 and 30 strikes for the evening.

Tom, who works at 41 Bowl, credits Tom Hibbard, the manager, for helping him with his bowling.

The 727 was his first sanctioned 700 and the 779 Tuesday gave him a special feeling. "I really feel kind of nervous," he said.

Why the sudden explosion in scoring?

"I think I've been practicing more," Tom said. "I also have been trying to get the ball out more."

Mavroff, a right hander, bowls twice a week in leagues and practices five or six times a week.

"I wasn't disappointed missing the 300," he replied, to a question. "Getting two 700s is pretty much for me."

He said he was uncertain about any professional aspirations. "I'm sort of in the middle...I'd like to work on being a pro."

Mavroff said he has been bowling in the Appleton junior bowling program about seven years.

OLYMPIAN CONFERENCE

Freedom	W	L
Brillion	4	2
Mishicot	4	2
Reedsville	3	3
Valders	3	3
Denmark	3	3
Wrightstown	0	6

Freedom High School extended its unbeaten string to six games with a 66-48 win over Brillion in Olympian Conference basketball action Tuesday night.

In other conference games, Denmark tipped Reedsville 60-51, Mishicot dealt Valders a 42-41 setback and Hilbert pounded Wrightstown 76-58 Thiel's 29 points.

The Freedom-Brillion score is somewhat misleading, however, as the Lions put on one of the stiffest battles the Irish have had this season.

Brillion raced to a 13-8 first period advantage but Freedom powered back to outscore the Lions 20-12 in the second segment, setting the halftime score at 28-25 with Freedom taking the advantage.

The Irish came on strong in the second half and finally took control behind some hot shooting. The winners shot at a 44 per cent clip for the night (on 24 of 55) while Brillion counted 21 of 56 (37 per cent).

Freedom also held an edge in rebounding, totalling 46 and holding Brillion to 34.

Larry Daul led the winners with 15 points while Mark Ott paced Brillion with 16.

In the Denmark-Reedsville encounter, the Vikings scored eight points in the test before Reedsville got on the board.

Reedsville outscored the winners 22-13 in the second segment to take a halftime lead at 32-31, but Denmark tallied 17 points to Reedsville's 12 in the third period to regain the advantage. In the final segment Denmark's defense proved to be the deciding factor as the Vikings held Reedsville to seven points while scoring 21 of their own.

Mike Quarry tops Zurheide in close bout

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mike Quarry, the world's seventh ranked light heavyweight boxer, used a combination of left jabs and hooks to pound out a close but unanimous 10-round decision over Karl Zurheide Tuesday night.

Quarry, gunning for a rematch with champion Bob Foster, who knocked him out in the first round 18 months ago, had to finish strong to earn the decision over the counterpunching Zurheide, who had the edge in the first five rounds.

Referee Milt Rickun scored it 97-96 for Quarry, while judges Howard Wahlen and Dick Bartman had it 97-95 and 98-95, respectively.

"I wanted to pace myself early," said Quarry, 22, who boosted his record to 39-4-3. "I knew I could handle Karl, although he hung on a lot. I don't know why he didn't fight more. He is a good defensive fighter, though, and I wouldn't be against giving him another shot."

Zurheide, Milwaukee, said he thought he had won and asked for another shot at Quarry, younger brother of heavyweight contender Jerry Quarry.

"I figured I had control of things and threw the cleaner punches," Zurheide said. "Sure, he threw a lot but many did not land. And what about the points I scored on the inside? Those were jolting blows."

Coach named for Chicago's WFL 'Fire'

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Fire sounded the gong today for the club's entry in the new World Football League with a coach, a playing site and claim of 40 contracted players.

Owner Tom Origer, 40, a Chicago construction magnate, Tuesday unveiled Jim Spavital, former Canadian Football League coach, as the mentor of the WFL club which will confront the Chicago Bears for local patronage.

Origer also announced the nickname of Chicago Fire (singular), contending "it's a strong name, it's Chicago, it's a name with promotional handles."

Origer, also general manager, did not identify the 40 players from college and pro ranks he says he has under contract.

He said the proposed 10-club WFL, set for a late July debut, will hold a draft of National Football League players in late January and a college draft in mid-February.

Origer said he expects to sign a final contract shortly for use of Soldier Field, the big stadium fronting Lake Michigan which also is the home base of the rival National Football League's Bears.

The 47-year-old Spavital, dismissed by the Winnipeg Blue Bombers after four head coaching years, is a former Oklahoma State running back who played pro ball with the former Los Angeles Dons and the NFL's Baltimore Colts.

At Winnipeg, Spavital led the Bombers to third (1971) and first (1972) place finishes in their division and then was fired when the Canadian League club dropped to the bottom last year.

Origer said other going WFL franchises include New York, Boston, Toronto, Honolulu, Washington, Detroit, Southern California (at Anaheim or Los Angeles), Birmingham and Orlando-Jacksonville.

The league is talking about playing Wednesday and Thursday nights, between late July and late November, but Origer's preference is Friday night.

Wolfpack rebounds from loss to UCLA

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Georgia caught North Carolina State on the rebound ... and it was too bad for the Bulldogs.

Still feeling pain from an 18-point loss to top-ranked UCLA, North Carolina State made Georgia suffer for it with a 94-60 beating Tuesday night.

"I was very disappointed after the UCLA game," said North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan, talking about Saturday's 84-66 loss in the battle of college basketball giants.

But he eventually felt a little better after marching through Georgia.

"We showed alertness, quickness and played better defense," said Sloan.

One of the reasons for those qualities was forward Phil Spence, who played 29 minutes and finished with 15 rebounds and 11 points.

In other games Tuesday night, sixth-ranked Marquette turned back Northwestern 77-63; No. 8 Louisville stopped Clemson 74-70 and Florida State upset No. 12 Memphis State 88-80.

David Thompson, held to 17 points by UCLA, exploded for 28 against Georgia. The Wolfpack ran off a quick early lead and kept hounding the Bulldogs with a full-court press that forced 32 turnovers.

Leading 43-27 at the half, North Carolina State ripped off a 26-9 advance right after intermission and put the Bulldogs — and the audience — to sleep.

Bo Ellis pumped in 18 points to lead Marquette over Northwestern. Leading 37-31 at the half, the Warriors broke things open with a 20-8 edge over a 10-minute period. Northwestern went almost 3½ minutes without scoring a point in that span.

Two free throws by Wesley Cox with 37 seconds left helped Louisville beat Clemson. Cox' two points broke a 70-70 tie that existed since the 3:12 mark when Bill Butler scored a field goal for Louisville.

Reserve center Zack Perkins led a second-half splurge as Florida State knocked back a Memphis State charge and upset the power-laden Tigers.

Elsewhere, James "Fly" Williams scored 16 points and had 11 rebounds in 22 minutes to lead Austin Peay to a 97-64 victory over Bellarmine (Ky.); Luther Burden scored 17 points to lead Utah over Ohio 71-68; Bill Singletary scored 20 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in Mississippi State's 85-77 success over Georgia Tech; Davidson stopped Princeton 66-47 as John Falconi and Greg Dunn teamed for 33 points and Alfonso Brigham fired in a 12-foot jumper with two seconds left to give Los Angeles State a 69-68 victory over Wichita State.

Hawks triumph, Bulls bow

The Atlanta Hawks snapped a five-game National Basketball Association losing streak Tuesday night by defeating the Capital Bullets 98-91.

Walt Bellamy held the Bullets' Elvin Hayes to 12 points, nine below his average, and Pete Maravich scored 34 points as the Hawks climbed to within two games of the first-place Bullets in the NBA's Central Division.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Milwaukee Bucks 109-107, the Boston Celtics trimmed the Golden State Warriors 125-106, the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the Chicago Bulls 93-92, the Portland Trail Blazers trounced the Phoenix Suns 133-117 and the Buffalo Braves downed the Cleveland Cavaliers 100-93.

No games were scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

Tony Taylor signs with Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tony Taylor received a nice present for his 38th birthday today: he got to come home. The veteran baseball infielder was signed as a free agent by the Philadelphia Phillies after being released by the Detroit Tigers of the American League.

Taylor spent 11 years with the Phils before he was sent to Detroit two years ago. He lives in Yeadon, a Philadelphia suburb.

Hill's injury worries Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy officials were concerned today over the sore knee which cost running back Calvin Hill the National Football Conference rushing title Sunday.

Hill gained 47 yards Sunday before removing himself from the game in Dallas' 30-3 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals. Hill finished second behind Green Bay's John Brockington by two yards—1,144 to 1,142.

Coach Tom Landry said that the knee has been so sore that Hill hasn't been practicing during the week.

"The knee is sore and gets fluid on it," Landry said. "That keeps him from running until it's drained."

Landry added "He misses a lot on running and timing in practice."

Fullback Walt Garrison was withheld from Sunday's game because of a hairline shoulder fracture. Garrison was expected to be ready for Sunday's National Football League divisional playoff against Los Angeles in Texas Stadium.

McKenzie preserves tie for Wings

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Life is full of little ironies when you're 24 and playing in your first National Hockey League game.

Tuesday morning, Bill McKenzie was an American Hockey League goalie and he was missing his 11 o'clock jumbo jet plane.

But Tuesday night, Bill McKenzie was in the NHL, not missing a little three inch puck and saving the Detroit Red Wings' 4-4 tie with the Los Angeles Kings.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the New York Islanders and Vancouver Canucks skated to a 2-2 tie and the Montreal Canadiens whipped the California Golden Seals 4-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Chicago Cougars and Winnipeg Jets finished in a 3-3 tie; the Quebec Nordiques beat the Edmonton Oilers 4-2; the Toronto Toros downed the Jersey Knights 4-1 and the Vancouver Blazers tripped the Los Angeles Sharks 5-2.

Though McKenzie had trouble catching his plane to Detroit, he was in the right place and right on time late in the third period. Mike Murphy had a breakthrough and a chance to uneven a 4-4 tie and pull out the Kings' first victory in Detroit in six years.

But he was grounded by McKenzie.

"All I thought about was to keep my legs together, cut the angle down and stay with him all the way," McKenzie said. "He didn't try to fake me, just gave me one shoulder and a shot. The puck hit me, I fell on it and everything turned out all right. I felt tremendous — like I was home."

Maybe he is now.

Montreal goalie Michel Larocque assisted on a first-period goal by Frank Mahovlich and stopped 30 of California's 31 shots in helping the Canadiens beat the Seals.

District Atty. Maximo Henriquez Saladin indicated Tuesday that the star center fielder of the Houston Astros will stay in jail while the courts go on vacation from Dec. 20-Jan. 8.

Center in Largo, Md., made a spirited rally. They trailed 84-68 after three quarters but trimmed the deficit to 90-89 with three minutes left. But Hayes fouled out at that point and the Bullets' defense collapsed.

Kevin Porter came off the bench to lead Capital with 23 points. Lou Hudson helped Maravich with 28 for the Hawks.

Celtics 125, Warriors 106

Jo Jo White hit six quick points in the closing minutes of the second quarter to start Boston on the way to victory.

The defeat, third in a row for the Warriors, cut their lead over Los Angeles to 12 percentage points in the Pacific Division.

North coach leaves, but team wins anyway

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — What does a head coach do when his team falls short on a fourth-down play?

If he's Coach Jack Christiansen, head mentor of the North in Tuesday night's Blue-Gray football game, he leaves the stadium and goes home.

But not because he's worried. Christiansen had to catch an early flight back to Stanford and, besides, his team was doing pretty well — the Blue was six points ahead on the strength of two field goals by a player who had never kicked one in a game in his life.

And Christiansen had a pleasant flight home. The six-point lead held up over the last few minutes to preserve the Blue's 20-14 victory over the Gray in the 36th renewal of the college all-star contest.

Christiansen had to leave Cramton Bowl shortly after his team failed on a fourth-down play at the Gray two. But, as he said as he left the stadium with less than three minutes to go in the game, "we had them backed up."

He also had luck and a fine quarter-

Lead shot to be banned

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Prohibition of lead shot is imminent because of the pellets' ability to poison waterfowl, the chairman of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress' waterfowl committee said Tuesday.

William Peterburs Jr. of Mequon, member of a study committee appointed by the Interior Department, said the evidence against shotgun shells containing lead seems irresistible.

"I expect to see lead shot outlawed somewhere, probably the Atlantic Flyway, for the 1974 season," he said. "You could expect the rule to follow in our (Mississippi) flyway and others."

Peterburs returned this week from a meeting with the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife concerning biological studies of ducks killed last year by hunters in 23 states.

"Analysis of lead content in wing-bones," he said, "have shown the previous estimate of 2.5 million ducks being poisoned annually is probably very conservative."

Amounts considered high enough to be lethal were found in 17 per cent of birds studied in the Atlantic Flyway, 16 per cent in the Pacific Flyway and 13 per cent in the Mississippi Flyway.

Ammunition manufacturers have resisted efforts to outlaw lead shot, saying alternate iron shot would cripple more birds and would cost more.

Environmentalists also oppose lead shot, saying waterfowl inadvertently consume it while dining in watery habitat where shotgun blasts have sprayed it.

Peterburs said an alternative to lead and iron, called the Canadian solution, evidently is not satisfactory.

Canadians were reported earlier this year to have discovered a means of producing safe shot with powdered iron and lead. But U.S. officials said toxic tests are not complete, and that there is no known practical means for producing the pellets in quantity.

Nordiques 4, Oilers 2
The Quebec Nordiques beat the Edmonton Oilers which wasn't the only beating going on in Quebec.

Both players' benches emptied after Edmonton's Doug Barrie and Jean Guy Gendron collided. Barrie took a swing the Quebec player with his stick, prompting Serge Bernier of the Nordiques to join the fracas. Jim Harrison of the Oilers entered the altercation and that brought both benches spilling onto the ice.

Jets 3, Cougars 3, tie
The Chicago Cougars scored all their goals in the final 12:41 of play to tie the Winnipeg Jets.

The luck came on the toe of John Phillips of Xavier, who kicked the first two field goals of his career to give the North its victory margin.

The quarterback was Jesse Freitas of San Diego State, who completed 14 of 23 passes for 168 yards and the go-ahead touchdown in the game.

Freitas connected with speedster Gerald Tinker of Kent State for an 11-yard scoring play in the third quarter to erase the Gray's 14-10 halftime lead.

Phillips later added a 34-yard field goal to complete the scoring. His first field goal was a 29-yard effort in the second period.

Senate, Assembly take different routes on shared tax distribution

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Contrasting approaches to distribution of state shared-tax revenue were approved Tuesday by the Senate and Assembly.

The Assembly approved 68-26 a bill for immediate, full distribution of $166.4 million in revenue to municipalities and counties.

The Senate approved 17-13 a bill for partial distribution, reflecting a plan proposed by Circuit Court.

Most of the money would be distributed, and the balance would be held in escrow pending outcome of a court suit filed by cities which insist they have not been allotted as much money as they deserve.

The Assembly plan for full distribution would be blocked by a court order which is in effect during litigation over the municipal challenges to the state's method of calculating the sums.

Services slated for former Indian leader

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday at St. Anthony Catholic Church for Joseph Frechette, the first Indian president of Menominee Enterprises.

Frechette, 69, died in his sleep early Tuesday morning in his Neopit home. The cause of death has not been determined.

He had been president of Menominee Enterprises from January, 1970, to September, 1971, when he retired. He was vice president of sales from 1964 after having been manager of the lumber sales division since 1954.

Born Funeral Home, Shawano, is in charge of arrangements.

Prayer is appropriate

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislators received some shortage-related advice when they met in special session to review Wisconsin's position in the energy crisis.

The Rev. George Stacy concluded a ceremonial opening prayer Monday by remarking: "May all our words be gracious and tender today, because tomorrow we may have to eat them."

the other's bill, the matter might be submitted eventually to a conference committee.

"The point is: do we get some partial payment and interest, or do we get nothing?" Republican Sen. Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan summarized.

Among those most eager to get at least some of the money distributed are municipalities whose budgets went into effect under the assumption state payments would arrive on schedule.

Delay of payment is forcing some cities to borrow. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey called legislators into special session this week, urging them to enact measures to get the money moving.

Lucey, the Administration Department and the State Revenue Department favored the Assembly's revenue version.

Municipalities sponsoring the court challenge favor the Senate's plan for partial distribution for the time being.

Both Senate and Assembly versions give statutory authority to distribute interest the state has been earning at an estimated $44,000 daily since Nov. 19, when distribution was to have begun.

The bill passed by the Assembly is based on a compromise endorsed by Lucey, allowing immediate full payment to budget-pinch municipalities while allowing legislators to make any corrections in July as a result of the court suit.

The Circuit Court order delaying full distribution would have to be lifted to accommodate the Assembly plan.

Assemblymen rejected 61-32 an amendment which would have endorsed the judge's order for partial distribution. Lawmakers argued the legislature should not interfere in court proceedings.

"I think for this legislature to intercede while litigation is going on is harmful," Rep. Joseph Czerwinski, D-Milwaukee, said. "We are sticking our nose where we don't belong."

"I suggest the best thing for this legislature to do is to affirm what the court has already decided and give those litigants a chance to settle their case," Czerwinski said.

In the Republican-controlled Senate, Democratic Sen. Wayne Whitlow of Milwaukee led the campaign for partial distribution.

He accused the Administration Department of hoping the legislature would rubber stamp its controversial method of proportioning the money.

"They lost the court battle, and then they come running to our doorstep," he said.

Democratic Sen. Fred Risser of Madison said $20 million to $40 million would be left in escrow by partial distribution.

A 'safe' driving speed depends on conditions

This feature is one of a weekly series presented as a service to our readers. It brings together selected questions about Wisconsin transportation, as asked by motorists—especially those on how you can drive more safely, for both yourself and others—and authoritative answers as given by informed members of the agencies involved.

Q: My husband and I disagree over "safe" driving speeds. He says my highway driving is way too slow and that I'm a hazard on the highway; he also informed me that there is a law regarding minimum highway speeds, regardless of what the speed limit may be during the energy crisis. Is this right? I think there would be a considerable decrease in highway accidents if all drivers would slow down, regardless of the fuel saving idea, especially during winter when driving conditions are more difficult.

A: It's difficult to advise you regarding who is "right" in interpreting a "safe" driving speed, since you don't provide us with specific examples. Minimum speed is usually a matter of good judgment, and all licensed drivers are obliged to use good judgment whenever they get behind the wheel of a car. However, your husband was right when he said a law exists governing minimum speed.

Section 346.59 of the state statutes says no person shall drive a motor vehicle at a speed "so slow as to impede the normal and reasonable movement of traffic, except when reduced speed is necessary for safe operation or compliance with the law." If a motorist is driving this slowly, (there may be a number of reasons for this other than a plain desire to drive slowly) he is required to yield to overtaking vehicles and move at a reasonable increased speed, if his machine is able to do so, or yield the roadway when directed to do so by a traffic officer. If a driver wishes to move more slowly than the minimum posted speed on Interstate highways, he should select an alternate route, rather than endanger himself and others on these roads.

Although highway speed limits are posted on state, county and local roads, minimum speed is not marked (except on the Interstate highways between Milwaukee-Madison and Milwaukee and the Illinois state line, etc.). There are situations when driving too slowly can indeed produce a safety hazard to traffic. The law recognizes this and provides for fines ranging from $20 to $100 if motorists fail to observe conditions as detailed in the statutes.

Your point concerning winter driving conditions, however, is an especially good one at this time of year. The law does provide for reduced speeds during inclement weather. Section 346.57 of the statutes includes conditions requiring reduced speeds when special hazards exist regarding other traffic, weather or highway conditions.

You might want to re-evaluate your driving habits at this time, with special attention to speed. If, for example, you drive at 15 mph on an Interstate highway, you could be the cause of a serious safety hazard; but when you operate your vehicle on icy roads, or in heavy snow, rain or fog, the law insists that you reduce your speed to insure complete control of your vehicle.

Ripon doctor heads area's emergency services council

OSHKOSH — Dr. Burton Kilbourne, a practicing surgeon in Ripon, has been elected chairman of the Lake Winnebago Area Emergency Medical Services Council. Three special study committees also were established at the unit's recent meeting.

Dr. Kilbourne is a member of the American College of Surgeons' national committee on trauma and has been involved in training ambulance and rescue personnel in the Chicago area for more than 14 years.

Named chairmen of the study committees were Dr. Thomas Loeschner, Appleton, training and public education; William Locke, news director of radio station WCWC in Ripon, transportation and communications; and James Kennedy, associate administrator of St. Agnes Hospital, Fond du Lac, hospital emergency capabilities.

The council, established under the Wisconsin Emergency Medical Services Program, is to plan all aspects of quality emergency services in the eight-county area.

Kimberly debaters win 1st at Sheboygan meet

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly High School Varsity Debate Team continued its winning ways over the weekend by capturing the Sheboygan South Invitational meet, the fifth tournament won by the four girls this year.

Members of the team were Sue Davies, Debby Van Nuland, Sue Jansen and Mary Cotoir. Two Kimberly teams tied for third on the Junior Varsity level. Members of these teams are Juli Binsfeld, Bill Wippich, Jeff Huth, Debby DeBruin, Karen Whitney, Joe Bast, Tom Frassetto and Mike Sensiba.

Others posting wins were Claudia Tourville, Robin Maisavage, Clark Caffisch, Mike Reeves, Vickie Mischler, and Sara Frassetto. The Coach is A.L. Peckham.

Refuse pick-up schedule

KIMBERLY — Director of Public Works Patrick Flanagan has announced a change in rubbish pick-up necessitated by the coming holidays.

Village crews work only until noon on the day before Christmas so added trucks will be used in an effort to complete the full Monday collection by noon. Pick-up begins at 7 a.m. and residents are asked to have debris at curb or alley lot lines early as it will be impossible to backtrack because of the tight schedule. He said that persons missed on Monday would have to wait for the next pick-up.

The Tuesday collection will be made on Wednesday with additional crews added to complete double collection. The remainder of the week will be as usual. Crews work a full day prior to New Year's Day, thus normal pickup is planned with the New Year's Day run to be doubled with the Wednesday collection.

REFUSE COLLECTION DURING THE HOLIDAYS WILL BE AS FOLLOWS

Monday, Dec. 24th and Tues., Dec. 25th

Refuse normally collected on these days will be collected starting on Wednesday. Crews will continue to collect the remaining routes throughout the week until completed.

Tues., Jan. 1st

Refuse normally collected on Tuesday will be picked up with Monday's collection.

Refuse should be placed at the curb by 7:00 a.m. as extra crews will be helping on all three days and regular routes may not be followed.

For further information call 739-5304 Monday through Friday between 7:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Oil dealer-solon wants federal controls first

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Sen. Jerome Martin, D-Whitelaw, faces a decision on the current energy crisis with mixed emotions.

Martin, alone with other state senators, will begin debate today on a comprehensive energy bill that will include state regulations on the allocation of fuel oil... a commodity which Martin knows about quite well.

The freshman legislator is himself the operator of an oil jobbing agency, distributing to farms throughout east central Manitowoc County for the past 37 years.

"I don't see why the state is setting regulations before the federal government," said Martin, who represents Manitowoc, Kewaunee and Door Counties. "What we need is federal legislation. Any regulation must come from the federal government first. Otherwise, if we put up too many restrictions, the oil companies will just go elsewhere."

The energy pinch has already affected Martin who has had to cut each customer's oil supply by 15 per cent. He agrees that an allocation system must be set up but doesn't agree with the way Wisconsin is going about it.

"There are too many restrictions on the bill submitted by the Governor," Martin continued. "But I think we'll have many amendments before we're finished."

applications. Three petroleum allocation programs now are in effect, said Rickert. They are a voluntary allocation program covering crude oil, gasoline and residual fuel oils which become effective May 10; a mandatory propane allocation effective Oct. 3 and a mandatory allocation of middle distillate fuels such as heating oil, diesel fuels, jet fuels and kerosene. The agency has no power to order anyone to deliver fuels, said Rickert. Instead, the aid provided is in application to proper state and federal agencies. The ASCS personnel preparing requests for fuel aid will verify data before it is sent to the proper agency for action, said Rickert. Request forms are available either at the ASCS office, 1003 W. College Ave., or at the county clerk's office.

Quick okay given to energy bill

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's program for handling Wisconsin's fuel needs during a petroleum shortage was approved 72-22 Tuesday by the Assembly.

The Democratic-controlled Assembly forwarded the measure to the Republican-ruled Senate, whose leaders said it would be on today's agenda.

The energy crisis and a dispute over distribution of state shared-tax revenue were the key reasons for Lucey's having called legislators into special session this week.

Stanley York, whom Lucey appointed as temporary energy commissioner pending legislative action, said the Assembly bill could provide his office with muscle to safeguard the state's energy needs.

The bill would give York's office the authority to demand confidential reports from oil corporations concerning fuel sales and supplies.

The bill would clear the way for a gasoline-saving speed limit of 55 miles per hour, applied uniformly to cars, trucks, buses and other vehicles as a traffic safety precaution.

It would authorize the State Highway Commission to allow trucks to exceed weight limits if the step were necessary to conserve fuel.

The proposal would take effect as soon as signed into law, and would remain in effect until July 1, 1975, unless the governor decided sooner to cancel it.

The governor had not specified how much money should be available for York's office, and the Assembly recommended $200,000 for the 1973-75 biennium.

It also set aside $50,000 more which York could request from the Board on Government Operations.

The Assembly dealt with 55 amendments, adopting several of them.

It decided to deny the energy commissioner any authority to regulate industrial hours of operation. Businessmen had complained about York's suggestion that factories consider an energy-conserving four-day work week.

The Assembly bill would assure public schools they would not have to sacrifice state financial aid were they forced to close down because of a dearth of heating fuel.

York said the bill's provision for letting his office obtain data from petroleum suppliers, even going to court if necessary, would help clear up many questions about the amount of fuel available to Wisconsin.

"Information is what I need," the former Republican party executive said.

The bill called for fines of up to $1,000

Watergate tape played at party

BY EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lawyer for the Ralph Nader organization has apologized for playing a subpoenaed White House tape for a group of friends.

"I've made a terrible mistake. I never should have done it. I'm extremely sorry. I regret it," attorney William Dobrovir said Tuesday night after news of the private session broke.

The White House said his action sounded unethical or illegal. A spokesman for special prosecutor Leon Jaworski expressed concern over White House reaction.

"That's just what we were worried about. Watch what the White House does with this now," the spokesman said.

The tape at issue was one that had been subpoenaed by the Nader organization in its suit against the administration charging that the dairy industry received beneficial policy decisions in exchange for a large contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign.

For months the White House had rebuffed the organization's efforts to obtain the tapes, then last week turned one over to Dobrovir. It was this tape that he played at a pre-dinner cocktail party.

Dobrovir said the seven others at the party, including Kevin Delany, ABC News Washington bureau chief, asked him to play the tape. He said he had a copy of it with him because he was planning to listen to it at home later that night.

Dobrovir said he told the gathering the tape "is practically inaudible" but said he played about five minutes of it.

"It was very difficult to understand what Mr. Nixon was saying. Then I... put it in my pocket and we went off to dinner."

ABC reported the incident on its Tuesday night newscast.

The tape in question was one of two made March 23, 1971. It recorded a meeting between President Nixon, administration aides and dairy industry representatives, but investigators have said they believe it is not particularly valuable as evidence.

Still being sought by Dobrovir is the second tape made that day of an afternoon meeting between Nixon and then-Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin and then-Budget Director George P. Shultz. The White House has claimed executive privilege in withholding this recording.

The incident was similar to one disclosed in October when former special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox divulged to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., what the White House had considered a privileged conversation concerning an ITT anti-trust case.

At that time, the White House charged that telling Kennedy of the conversation illustrated a bias Cox had against the administration in his investigation. Cox apologized for discussing the material with Kennedy.

Mother, 5 children die in Orlando fire

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A mother and her five children died early today when a blaze destroyed the second floor of a wooden two-family dwelling, fire officials said.

Authorities identified the victims as Elizabeth Forest, 23, and her children — Issac, 8; Cathy, 7; Lilie Mae, 6; Lorine, 4; and Michael, 3.

"The bodies of the six were found piled under a bed" on the second floor of the two-story building, said Richard King, spokesman for the Orange County Sheriff's office.

Officials originally reported that five children and one teenager were killed in the blaze and that the mother was identifying the bodies.

"There was a lot of confusion as to who was and who wasn't killed," King said. "At first, we thought the mother was a 16-year-old sister of the dead children."

Investigators said the fire apparently was started by a candle.

"They were using candles because the electricity was shut off Tuesday," King said. "A neighbor told us one candle was sitting on a plastic cover on the dresser."

Authorities said 14 persons were in the building when the blaze broke out but the family of Clarence Williams, living on the first floor, was able to escape without injury, authorities said.

Williams said after the fire broke out he tried to awaken the Forest family by yelling and pounding on the building but they did not respond.

"The upstairs was a ball of fire," Williams said.

Authorities said they were attempting to notify the unidentified father who lived at a different address.

The head Santa

Santa loses his 'ho, ho, ho'

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Dowie's Santa Claus School concentrates on turning out believable, authentic-looking, jolly old St. Nicks without that "Ho, Ho, Ho" jive.

"We never tell our Santas to say 'Ho, Ho, Ho,'" said Fran Dowie. "No one really goes around saying 'Ho, Ho, Ho.' You just have to keep your personality bubbling. It's not what you say. It's what you feel."

Dowie's school, part of the British Columbia School of Performing Arts and Crafts, offers a 10-week course — four hours of instruction a day — for $50 per student. However, Dowie admits a person with an outgoing personality can learn the role in about six hours.

But $50 really is a bargain he says. Gradyates from his school can get $25 an hour from Santa-users who want a top-of-the-line product.

Forty students graduated from this year's course, Dowie said. About 120 people applied, but most were turned down as unqualified.

Qualifications include a lot of years. Dowie says older persons with white eyebrows and mature face and tone of voice make the best Santas.

"It really drives me up a wall when I see 18-year-olds taking a Santa job when there are senior citizens who could do it," Dowie said.

"It's not hard work. You sit down and do the thing old folks like doing most of all: talking to children."

Clothes are critically important, Dowie says. The best beards are made of yak hair, but are all but impossible to get now, he says.

Dowie favors combed-up eyebrows, a feather pillow belly, a coat of red velvet, a sprig of holly on the cap and white gloves.

White gloves are very important. Who can trust a Santa Claus with dirty fingernails, he asks.

Freighter sinks, crew in lifeboats

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — Rescuers fought heavy seas today as they tried to pick up survivors of a sunken Liberian freighter from two bobbing lifeboats and a raft.

The freighter with a crew of 40 sank early today in the Pacific about 520 miles northwest of here, Canadian rescue officials said.

Two Japanese ships and a Russian vessel were trying to reach the lifeboats and raft, but the heavy seas were hindering the effort, a rescue spokesman said.

A Canadian rescue coordinator said flares were visible early today from lifeboats near where the Oriental Monarch was reported to have sunk at 1:15 a.m. PST.

"That's a sign that there's someone alive and kicking down there," a Canadian rescue spokesman said.

The United States Coast Guard said the Japanese freighter Golden Arrow was at the scene and "trying to run down two life boats and a life raft."

The Golden Arrow reportedly was just eight miles away when the freighter went down in gale-whipped seas.

Last reports from the ship were that some men were still aboard the Liberian freighter, although these reports could not be confirmed. There had been no communication from the vessel for five hours before it reportedly went down.

Kuwait silent on fate of Palestinian hijackers

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait officials maintained official silence today on the fate of five Palestinian terrorists who killed 32 persons in a two-day spree at airports in Rome and Athens.

But official sources in Morocco said Kuwaiti authorities have pledged that "severe punishment" awaits the killers. Two of their victims were Moroccan ministers.

Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Taieb Benhima received assurances the five guerrillas will stand trial in Kuwait or be handed over to the Palestinian Liberation Organization for trial, the sources said.

The terrorists falshed V-for-victory signs and said they were proud of what they had done as they were taken in handcuffs Tuesday night to a military air base for questioning.

They had freed 12 hostages unharmed and then surrendered after flying to this Persian Gulf sheikdom in a hijacked West German jet. Kuwait officials said their surrender was unconditional but spokesmen for the West German airline Lufthansa said Kuwait had promised them safe passage to an undisclosed destination.

The German jet returned to Rome today, 49 hours after the commandos took it over following their shooting spree and firebombing of a jet Monday at Rome's airport.

The 12 hostages were aboard the jet and were greeted by a happy crowd of relatives, colleagues and authorities.

The hostages included five Italian policemen, an Ethiopian ground employee at the Rome airport, West German, French and Austrian stewardesses, and the three crewmen of the jet.

Salvatore Fortuna, one of the policemen, was welcomed home by his parents, 11 brothers, fiance and friends, who traveled overnight from Sicily to meet him.

After the hostages were freed in Kuwait Tuesday, the German pilot of the hijacked plane went to a hotel room and told the switchboard not to put any calls through to him. The five Italian policemen who were among the hostages went to the night club at the Kuwait Hilton.

The guerrillas killed 30 persons by firebombing a Pan American jet Monday at Rome's Fiumicino airport and shot an Italian policeman to death. They killed another Italian among their hostages in Athens and threw his body out of the plane. But reports from the plane that four other hostages had been murdered were false, concocted by the guerrillas in a futile attempt to get the Greek government to release two Black September terrorists awaiting trial for murder.

At least 14 of the victims of the Rome firebombing were Americans, and a 16-year-old American girl who survived, Robbie Haggard, was in critical condition with burns over much of her body.

The guerrillas told newsmen they considered themselves guests in Kuwait and believed they would be well treated.

Agnew asks suspension rather than disbarment

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has asked the Maryland judiciary to only suspend him from practicing law.

Agnew, who faces possible disbarment by the State of Maryland, appealed to a panel of three circuit court judges Tuesday, asking them not to agree with the request for his disbarment from the Maryland Bar Association.

He asked the judges to recommend to the state's highest court "some suitable suspension" for his no-contest plea in federal court in October to one charge of income tax evasion.

"That's a reasonable solution to the problem. It's a reasonable protection for the courts and the bar," Agnew said.

Agnew told the judges that their job was to consider how he had practiced law in the past and how he would practice law in the future, not further punishment on the tax evasion charge.

"Should I be permitted to resume my practice, I would conduct myself in a way that would not bring discredit on the bar, the legal profession or the courts," he said.

Nothing was forgotten for a good party: gifts and games and toys and food and, naturally, Santa. (Post-Crescent photo)

Harrison town board approves installation of light on firelane

BY HAZEL THIEL
Post-Crescent correspondent

HARRISON — In an effort to curb nighttime activities in the lakeshore area, the town board has agreed to install a light on Firelane 8.

Action was taken after Constable Mike Sambs made a second request. He explained that the still was getting calls during early morning hours from residents complaining of noise and nuisance.

The board deferred action on Sambs previous request for a light after W. A. Close, who had originally complained of the activities, said he felt that the matter would be worsened by the installation of a street light. Board members, in authorizing the light, said they had to take into consideration the request of a dedicated law enforcement officer. They said that no objections to the light had been made by permanent residents of the area in question.

Sambs also asked the board to consider having parking tickets printed by the town in order to get money back into the town treasury.

Legal advice will be sought regarding Kimberly school district's request to be paid 100 per cent of its school taxes in March. The town pays about 70 per cent of the school levy in March and the balance in August after second installment taxes are paid to county treasurer.

Town officials said that paying the school district in full in March would require borrowing money, and if it were done for one, others could ask for the same consideration. Kimberly school officials said they need the money in spring to meet current debts.

The board also approved extending the ban on discharging of firearms to the Manitowoc Road, and Kernan

Sheriff makes staff change at Waupaca

WAUPACA — The law enforcement committee of the county board approved changes in the sheriff's department staff on Monday, effective immediately.

Sheriff Loran Frazier announced that Donald Berglund will move from night deputy to investigator. He has been with the department 14 months and is a graduate of Fox Valley Technical Institute in police science.

James Biddison will take over the night patrol. He has been a deputy since March, and has studied police science at the University of Wisconsin — Platteville and the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

Both men will attend police training school in the spring.

Shawano No. 2 team, New London undefeated

Shawano No. 2 of the northern division and New London of the south remain the only undefeated teams after the third week of action the the Badger Amateur Basketball Association.

In games this past weekend, New London dumped Waupaca Recreation, 127-92; Shawano No. 2 downed Marion, 97-63; Manawa nipped Shawano No. 1, 63-61; Waupaca Bruins thrashed Weyauwega, 99-77; Iola outscored Rosholt, 72-56; and Bonduel edged Wittenberg, 69-67 in double overtime.

Roger Steingraber paced New London with 30 points, while Cal Handschke added 26 and John Kappernich 20. Bob Austin topped all scorers with 38 points in a losing effort for Waupaca Recreation.

Bob Johnson paced Shawano's win over Marion with 26 points while Jim Betzner and Mike Gorman had 16 each. Ernie Beaber added 15 and Tom Betzner 14. Kent Brandenburg had 19 points for Marion and Vaughn James Avenue area of the town as requested last month by Constable Dan Jury.

Permission was given Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. to lay underground cable across Palisades Trail, Spurline Road and Golf Course Road in the High Cliff area.

A beer license was granted to Mrs.

Jolen Weber for the former Thirsty Eye tavern.

In other business, the board reinstated Gordon Vande Hey as chief of the No. 2 fire department at Lake Park. It also agreed that taxes would have to be paid on a home owned by John Hammer this year as it was not demolished until Oct. 1.

The rate in the Appleton district is $24.53 per $1,000 assessed valuation, which includes $19.62 for education, including the technical institute; $4.66 for county taxes and 25 cents for state tax. Assessed valuation of the area is $5,684,904 and the levy will be $139,450.

In the Kaukauna school district taxpayers will have a rate of $25.71. This includes $20.80 for schools; $4.66 for county tax and 25 cents for state taxes. Total assessed valuation is $10,945,235. Total levy in the Kaukauna district is $281,402.

Those living in the sanitary district of Darboy are being assessed $1 per $1,000 for a total of $1,512 based on a valuation of $1,512,205.

Roth would eliminate fuel oil sales tax

State legislators are being "manipulated" by big oil companies who might be claiming fuel shortages in an effort to get higher prices for their product, State Rep. Tobias Roth, R-Appleton, said.

Roth, in a telephone interview before the assembly went back into session today to debate Gov. Patrick Lucey's energy legislation, said he would ask for an end to the sales tax on fuel oil because "the way fuel prices are going, I think it's incumbent upon us to take the sales tax off for the duration of the crisis."

evidence by the defense Tuesday, had jury admitting: He had given false statements to state agents under duress and because he was confused and frustrated; many of those statements falsely implicated others, including Henke, in crimes they didn't commit; he deeply regretted all of the illegal and improper things he had done and was making the affidavit to correct his past mistakes, and he believed Henke to be "one of the most competent attorneys in this area."

Some of the statements in the affidavit, notarized by Marquart on May 16, were false, jury testified.

Asked if he was afraid of Henke, he replied, "I'm not really afraid of him, but I'm leery of him."

Jury said Henke had come to him before the affidavit signing and told of being investigated by state agents. Henke asked if he could depend on him and Peterson to keep quiet, jury related. "I said yes."

Jury said he cooperated with state agents (he talked to them 30 times) and gave them statements about the Peterson trial. He had hoped the agents would, in turn, help him get numerous criminal charges from several counties consolidated, he admitted. But he said that didn't happen.

Jury agreed he recently lied to Henke's attorneys, against the advice of an assistant attorney general, "because I felt I was being used by attorneys. I was getting stepped on."

Jury also admitted, on cross examination, that he felt pressured by the state Department of Justice.

Carol Reissmann of Clintonville, whose testimony Tuesday corroborated much of that given by Mrs. Kuhnke, Peterson and jury, said Hanke told her and Mrs. Kuhnke right after the trial "to keep our mouths shut" about what happened.

He came to her house a few months after the trial to ask if state agents had been there, Mrs. Reissman recalled.

Defense attorneys had her read a letter she wrote to a friend, Harold Huff of Menasha, last May in which she urged him to tell state agents the truth about the Peterson trial and also stated that she believed the state is "trying to get Henke."

said the proposals to cut state speed limits to 55 miles per hour and place the energy coordinator's office under state statute don't "address the fundamental problem."

"I have been told that there are oil companies that have huge stock piles, but they are not releasing their products because they're waiting for the prices to go higher," said Roth.

Roth said federal and state governments "must first find out where these shortages are, and if we really do have shortages," before passing legislation to meet an energy shortage.

"We're being used down here," he said, by oil companies that want to push up the prices of their products.

Roth said there's a strong need for tight federal controls on the prices of many products besides fuel.

"It seems like everything you name, there's going to be a shortage," he said, pointing to paper as one example.

"It's the ideal time for the state legislature to come out and ask Congress to do something" to hold down prices and assure adequate supplies of a number of products that producers are saying will be in short supply.

"It's coming to the point where we almost have to have price controls," he said.

Spanbauer resigns as Waupaca alderman

WAUPACA — The City Council Tuesday accepted the resignation of Ald. Edward J. Spanbauer (2nd), effective Dec. 15.

Mayor Ray Roe, after reading the letter of resignation in which Spanbauer told his fellow aldermen that he was reducing his work load, asked for approval of the request with "the deepest regret."

Spanbauer was chairman of the traffic and safety committee and served on the board of public works and the parking commission.

Most recently Spanbauer provided the leadership which won state Department of Transportation approval to reroute State 22, 54 and 49 around the city, a plan expected to be implemented in 1974.

A meeting has been called for 1:30 p.m. Dec. 27 in council chambers for the board of public works and interested aldermen to sit down with state highway officials and discuss 1974 plans for rerouting state highways around the city.

A motion to increase the expense account of the mayor from $33 per month to $50 a month and the expense account of the aldermen from $10 to $25 per month, effective Jan. 1, 1974, was passed by a simple majority.

geship, to be voted on in the spring election.

In announcing his re-election bid, Schaefer, who served as the county's district attorney from 1961-68, expressed concern for the growing amount of crime across the country and indicated his belief that community involvement with the judicial process can serve as an effective deterrent to the rising incidence of crime.

"The police alone, the prosecution alone, the court alone cannot solve the problem without the support of all the citizens," he said.

"In what I believed were the appropriate cases, I have sentenced a number of individuals to confinement and I expect that I will continue to do so in the future," Schaefer said.

"By the same token, I believe the court has the responsibility to consider the available alternatives, such as probation and the imposition of fines in appropriate cases," he added.

Schaefer has pioneered local efforts for prisoner counseling and rehabilitation. He organized a local corps of Volunteers in Probation, where citizen volunteers donate some of their time to work with young offenders. The program has grown in two years to more than 100 volunteer counselors.

He also has initiated a six-point rehabilitation program for prisoners, so they can receive individual, professional help for their problems. To help implement the program, he has sought to increase the manpower of the county jail's Huber Law section.

Schaefer also has organized traffic safety schools, where offenders can receive fine reductions and license point savings upon successful completion.

Schaefer is a lifetime resident of Appleton, living at 713 E. McArthur St. He is a graduate of Marquette University, receiving both his undergraduate and law degrees there. He is a member of the Outagamie County Bar Association, State Bar of Wisconsin, American Bar Association, American Judicature Society and the Wisconsin Board of Judges.
